SOMERVILLE CHILD KIDNAPED

MOTHER IS SOUGHT IN SEQUEL TO DIVORCE

Believed to Have Stolen Six-Year-Old Girl Who Was on Way to School

This story is about the kidnaping of a baby.

Rebecca Flanders.

Rebecca is six years old.

She was on her way to the Proctor School in Somerville when a "Blonde Viking" and a woman drove up in a limousine and snatched Rebecca away.

Before you get acquainted with the facts in the case it is best to know that a marital entanglement preceded the kidnaping. Rebecca's Pa and Ma were divorced. At the divorce hearing Rebecca's mother, Mrs. Mildred E. Flanders, testified that:—

FAINTED IN SNOW.

"I fainted in the snow when peeking through a window I saw my husband and his pretty young housekeeper, Hazel Smith, a divorcee, put our kiddies to bed and then TURN OUT THE LIGHT."

The husband is Percy W. Flanders. He lives at No. 16 Ames street, Somerville.

At the divorce hearing before Justice Hall in Superior Court Mrs. Flanders said:

"I will come back to my husband but—ONLY AS A HOUSEKEEPER, NOT AS A WIFE."

Percy didn't want a housekeeper so Mrs. Flanders did not return. The divorce was granted the wife on the grounds of cruelty. Charges that Flanders and his pretty divorcee housekeeper had been guilty of intimacy were not sustained.

MOTHER IS ACCUSED.

Now comes the kidnaping.

The divorced mother is accused of being the kidnaper.

The case has created a sensation in Somerville.

Rebecca was walking toward

At top: Rebecca Flanders of Somerville, and her brother, Tommy, separated by kidnaping. Rebecca's mother obtained a decree from Percy Flanders. In court she said she was willing to return to Flanders, but only as a housekeeper. He demurred to that proposal. Lower picture is photo-diagram showing how "Blonde Viking" jumped from automobile, while Rebeca and a little girl chum were on way to school, and seized the Flanders child. The little chum says she recognized the woman in the car as "Becky's Mamma."

DICTAGRAPH TRAP FOR MRS. STOKES

SUN SHINES FOR TODAY'S GAME

Nehf Is McGraw's Last Reliance to Stem Tide of Defeat

New York, Oct. 15.—Prospects for the fifth game of the World's Series brightened today when the sun burst through heavy clouds. At 8 o'clock it was raining lightly and it seemed the game would be called off. Later conditions took a turn for the better. The rain had ceased and the clouds were showing rifts through which blue sun shone brightly.

By NICK FLATLEY.

New York, Oct. 15.—The minute fragments of McGraw's baseball club are likely to be scattered over the stretches of Coogan's Bluffs this afternoon, to let the winds of approaching Winter do with them what they will.

Art Nehf, who southpawed the Yankees to defeat on Friday, McGraw's last and only hope to stop the rushing American Leaguers, was sent to the mound.

For unless the Giants perform the miracle and knock back what seems inevitable disaster, this World Series will trickle into history some time before sunset.

Two weird bombardments in the past two days have the Giants gasping like marathon runners. Brains and speed don't amount to a pinch of snuff when the old bone bits are flying. And no club ever escorted a more vicious assault in a World Series than the Yanks have produced.

MILLIONAIRE HAD SPIES IN HOTEL

Wife Has Proofs Denying the Story She Paid Wallace Visit; Trial on Again

New York, Oct. 15.—A sensation was created at the resumption of the famous Stokes divorce trial today when it became known that a dictagraph plot to trap Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, the young wife from whom aged W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire hotel man, seeks freedom, had been frustrated by a Chicago criminal investigator.

He is W. C. Dannenberg, former secret service operator. He was retained by the young wife in the recent Chicago investigation of perjury and conspiracy which resulted in the indictment of Stokes and six others.

Since their arrival a week ago to participate in the defense of Mrs. Stokes at the trial of her husband's suit for divorce, Dannenberg and Charles E. Erbstein, the young wife's Chicago attorney, noticed that their movements, as well as the actions of Mrs. Stokes and her mother were closely watched by some of Stokes's private detectives.

When Dannenberg called on Mrs.

PLUNGES FOUR STORIES WHILE WHEELING CEMENT

Tennessee workmen constructing a building in Postoffice square today saw a man fall four floors to his death. He was Pedro Olivaro, a laborer. They were loath to return to their jobs when the foreman ordered work to go on.

After some discussion they went back to work.

Olivaro had been wheeling a barrow filled with cement along a platform of the structure. He tripped and fell through the centre of the structural steel building. His body struck the third and second floors in his descent. He died within a few minutes.

SISTERS TO SHARE $50,000 AFTER 41-YEAR ROMANCE

A romance that began forty-one years ago in an inmate's asylum has reunited two sisters and provided a century-over $50,000 will.

Mrs. Ethel May Messinger, of No. 15 Spring Garden street, Dorchester, is returning with her two little girls from San Francisco after meeting the stretches of Coogan's Bluffs this afternoon, to let the winds of approaching Winter do with them what they will.

$5000 IN BOOZE AND 4 MEN SEIZED

Providence, Oct. 15.—Four men in two automobiles were arrested and 464 quarts of Scotch whiskey, valued at $5,000, seized by the East Providence police as an indirect result of an automobile accident.

Two of the men were taken into custody at a gun point, after they had attempted to draw revolvers. The other pair were arrested near the East Providence police station while attempting to learn what had happened to their companions.

The arrested men gave their names as W. B. Bradley and Bertram M. Armstrong of Albany; King Johnson, Riverside, and Alex Carron, East Providence.

The first machine was seized by police in the belief it was a machine that had speeded by the scene of an accident a short time previously. The police discovered their mistake and were about to permit the driver to proceed when one of the officers thrust his hand under a robe covering the rear seat and felt a bottle.

The drived reached for a gun, but Patrolman Hancock covered him and took the weapon, a heavy army Colt. He again searched the driver and found a 32 calibre revolver.

The prisoners were then taken to the station and Patrolman Estes followed in a police car. He no-

They are Charles Driscoll of Beverly and Francis Cox of Fall River.

The average man shaves more often than he takes a bath. Yes, gentlemen who takey our daily dig upon arising may disagree with the statement, but a canvass taken among ordinary men of the street proves it.

school with Beryl Van Wick, a playmate. With her brother, Thomas, five years old, Rebecca was placed in the custody of her father. The mother has the third child, Herbert, three years old, in Goffstown, N. H.

A limousine swung up to the curb beside the two children. The "blonde Viking" rushed out. With a sweep of his great arms he had swooped up Rebecca. He tossed her into the automobile. It was at Hudan and Central streets, Somerville. Beryl screamed. Came a woman from the neighborhood.

"It is all right," said the "Viking." "This is the child's mother."

POLICE UNCONCERNED

The machine sped away.

"It was Becky's mamma," said Beryl. "I recognized her."

Flanders, appealing to the police, was non-plussed when they refused to interfere.

"If it's the child's mother, we can not do anything," they said.

"But," cried the frantic parent, "if it's true she is in contempt of court, I was given custody of the child at the divorce. She has disobeyed the court's ruling."

The police nodded in dull fashion and moved on.

That night Rebecca's brother, Tommy, clutched his father by the neck.

"Why Daddy," he said, "Becky isn't in her little bed."

She wasn't.

COURT ACTION STARTS.

Where she is is for the Superior Court of Massachusetts to find out. Today legal machinery was prepared to move to discover if Rebecca's mother stole her.

"She did," said Flanders' pretty housekeeper. "I know she did."

In Goffstown, detectives will look for Rebecca.

Meanwhile Somerville talks and the conversation buzzes about a kidnaped baby and the eternal triangle, wife, husband and pretty housekeeper.

The housekeeper is twenty-eight years old, the same age as Mrs. Flanders. She divorced Ben Smith, who served two years overseas in the war. They were married at sixteen and divorced before Smith enlisted.

Mrs. Flanders, strange to say, was proprietor of an eating establishment on Ashburton place, known as Smith's restaurant. She sold out previous to the kidnaping.

BOYS SET $35,000 CAMBRIDGE FIRE

Two horses were burned to death and the drying house and stable of the Standard Turning Works, No. 122 Broadway, Cambridge, were destroyed by two separate fires, both believed to be incendiary, which broke out almost simultaneously in the two buildings.

The flames threatened the thickly populated tenement house district near the plant. Damage was estimated at $35,000.

Neighbors of the plant told the police they saw two youths leave the plant hurriedly immediately before the fires were discovered. Firemen detected the odor of oil about the burning buildings.

GIRL MISSIONARIES RESCUED FROM CHINESE BANDITS

Shanghai, Oct. 15. (I.N.S.)—General Chang's forces defeated the bandit chief, "Pan the Terrible" and rescued the Misses Darroch and Sharp, missionary workers captured several weeks ago and held for ransom.

At the sametime word came that bandits had captured J. Stamm, Standard Oil representative near Luchow and four junks laden with oil and that Stamm was being held for $2,000 ransom.

Rev. W. A. Hick, head of the China Inland Mission at Chunking, was shot through the neck during recent fighting.

'LORD WILL PROVIDE'—JOHN D; AND HE DID, SAYS DOHERTY

Atlantic City, Oct. 15.—"The Lord will provide."

This was the optimistic declaration made by John D. Rockefeller many years ago, when the oil industry was facing a crisis. It was at a meeting of oil men and some pessimist had suggested that it would be a good idea for those present to enter a more stable business.

Henry L. Doherty, of New York, president of the Cities Service Company, who told the story, commented:

"And Mr. Rockefeller was right."

Doherty, who is here to attend the American Gas Association convention, added:

"As a prophet he scored 100 per cent!"

INSANITY PLEA BY POST LIKELY IN MURDER

Rockland, Me., Oct. 15.—Fred L. Post, sixty-year-old marine engineer, under arrest on a charge of shooting to death Mrs. Sybil Estelle Hamilton, fifty-three-year-old Rockland widow, has recovered from the heart attack which nearly killed him in the Knox County Jail.

Fred L. Post

"I found Fred much better when I visited him," said Mrs. Margaret Brown Post, the accused man's fourth wife, who came here from New London, Conn., to aid him in his fight for freedom. "He has just about recovered from the heart attack which nearly cost him his life."

CARTRIDGE FOUND.

From the police, it was learned that a 25-calibre cartridge was found in Post's room. Post has admitted ownership of a 25-calibre Colt automatic pistol which has been missing since the shooting. Police declare the bullets responsible for Mrs. Hamilton's death were also 25-calibre.

According to three former wives of Post, women have played an important part in the marine engineer's life. Post's father, Joseph, who died in an insane asylum at Augusta, was also a man "much given to the company of women," according to the present Mrs. Post.

INSANITY PLEA LIKELY.

She fears the strain of insanity has been handed down to her husband, and in case alienists confirm that suspicion, insanity will probably be the plea offered in defense of Post, she said.

Post's first wife was Minnie Smith, whom he married at the request of her parents when she was seventeen years old. His second wife was Cassie Jameson, and his third, Rose Roach. Two of the wives are known to have obtained divorces.

2 LOSE LIVES IN $2,000,000 FIRE

Los Angeles, Oct. 15.—The brush fire which took two lives in its sweep over a fifteen-mile area north of Glendale and Eagle Rock had hardly been brought under control when the menace reappeared in other sections and in various ways.

A dozen houses, four industrial plants and an oil well swelled the total of Sunday conflagrations.

One of these, the blaze which destroyed a lumber yard and a furniture manufacturing plant in Vernon, was believed to have resulted in loss of life. Two other plants, a planing mill and a glass works, increased the estimate of loss suffered by industrial establishments.

In the Santa Monica mountains a brush fire in La Flores Canyon burned an area of 1,300 acres. Ten thousand acres at Palo Verdes were swept by flames.

Estimates of the total fire loss involved ranged from $2,000,000 to more than twice that amount.

EX-JUNKMAN DUPED

Fitchburg, Oct. 15.—John Dodwell seventy-six years old, only a few years ago a prosperous junk dealer, today is penniless as a result, he says, of an adventure with a forty-six-year-old housekeeper.

The woman whom the old man took into his house and his confidence, Mrs. Alice Benelisha, has vanished after, it is alleged, she fleeced him out of nearly $7,000, his entire fortune, according to the police.

Investigation by the police revealed that the woman secured most of the old man's money by persuading him to buy property at high prices and then securing fat commissions from the vendors.

BOUGHT AN AUTO.

Dodwell met Mrs. Benelisha eighteen months ago. He first gave her $125 to go to Montana, it is alleged. When she returned she persuaded him to buy an automobile for $400 and a truck for $1,200, the police say.

Then, it is said, the woman, in a conspiracy with a local real estate dealer, got him to buy a farm in Sterling for $5,000. Dodwell moved to the farm and installed the woman as his housekeeper. A few days later, the woman disappeared and with her a large amount of the old man's money, it is charged.

APPLIES FOR AID

While the police are making a country wide search for the woman, Dodwell is waiting for his application to enter the City Farm to be accepted.

The missing woman is described as forty six years old, five feet tall, of stout build, weighing about 170 pounds, and light complexioned. She has often worked as a waitress.

PASTOR RAPS LEGION FOR VETS' NEGLECT

The American Legion and the public were scored for their alleged neglect of the disabled war veterans in the sermon delivered by Rev. Frank Kingdon at the United Methodist Church on Berkeley street.

"The most maddening sight in Boston today," Rev. Mr. Kingdon said, "is the heartrending spectacle of disabled veterans begging money from passers-by. It is unbelievable that the public and the American Legion should so utterly neglect those heroes who sacrificed health and wealth, sight and limb for their country. Such an existing condition is a disgrace."

window, sustaining internal injuries which may prove fatal.

Neighbors, seeing smoke rolling from the basement of the dwelling house, rushed to the spot just in time to see Mrs. Anna Andrews leap from a window of the attic apartment.

Two hours later firemen found the body of Charles Andrews, nineteen-year-old athlete and student at Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, just inside of a rear window. Near him lay his aunt, Mrs. Lillian Andrews. The body of twelve-year-old Margaret was found clasped in the arms of Miss Wigert, a maid, in an adjoining room.

The ruins of a third bedroom disclosed the body of Fowler. Kyne had been trapped in the bathroom in an attempt to reach a window. They were roomers in the Andrews home.

A dozen occupants of the first and second floor apartments were awakened and led through the flames to safety by Dr. Thomas McNickle, a dentist, and his brother, who was four nieces were among the rescued.

These are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect. The result is a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

What a Pity

To hide the teeth's greater beauty with a dingy film

Countless people still leave film-coats on their teeth. Millions of others have found a way to combat them.

That is why so many teeth are cloudy, while other teeth now glisten.

Here is a ten-day test which will bring a revelation to you. Make it now, for the sake of whiter, cleaner, safer teeth.

Combat that film

Film is that viscous coat you feel. Much of it clings and stays after ordinary brushing. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. And those coats hide the luster of the teeth.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So tooth troubles became almost universal.

Now dental science has found ways to fight that film. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Many careful tests proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

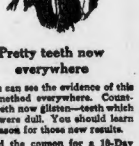
Leading dentists everywhere began to advise it. Now that method has brought a new dental era to millions of homes the world over.

Digests the starch

Starch deposits on teeth may also ferment and form acids. Pepsodent multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, put there to

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.



Pretty teeth now everywhere

You can see the evidence of this new method everywhere. Countless teeth are glisten—teeth which once were dull. You should learn the reason for those new results.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

In a few days you will realize how much this method means to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

DIP INTO the past, when everybody believed in witchcraft and demons and nobody had a bathtub. Read about Arthur Covell, the Oregon astrologer. A bedridden cripple, he taught his sixteen-year-old nephew all about the stars, explaining that it would be safe to murder women for their money when the stars were just right.

THE nephew killed his stepmother accordingly. Later the stars, somehow, slipped up. Uncle and nephew are in trouble. Stars, fortune tellers, soothsayers, mediums, weather prophets, don't seem to work as accurately as they used to.

LLOYD GEORGE says Germany needs a dictator. If she doesn't get one she will have terrible revolution instead.

It is something new to see sixty million people disarmed, bankrupt, half starved, without aggressive leadership. A nation, like an individual, requires time to recover from a fearful beating.

THE "man" will appear eventually, coming perhaps from Russia, according to the old prediction. Men make machines, of steel, of money, of science. But in emergencies "the man" is still necessary.

GERMANY prints notes for one billion and five billion marks each, most appropriately decorating them with thistles and thorns. The note for one billion, which would have been worth two hundred and fifty million dollars before the war, will be used "for small change."

LACK OF A POWERFUL dictator in Germany will mean, according to Lloyd George, two revolutions, one red, and a counter revolution, white. Very bad for France that would be, says Lloyd George, "for that would mean no reparations."

If the dictator amounted to anything his success would also mean "no reparations." Only a fighting dictator would be worth his salt.

MR. FRANCIS O. FRENCH, who has William H. Vanderbilt for a cousin and other rich folks, having lost his money in Wall Street, starts driving a "Checker" taxicab. His home is one furnished room, "although his family has houses in New York, Tuxedo, Newport and Paris."

THE SOCIETY REPORTERS weep over this of course. But, rich parents that spoil children please notice that this young man's first day of real education will be his first day on that checker cab. He will learn that if you don't steer straight, you will be bumped. And he cannot go on his day's profits, he'll realize that a dollar means something.

SECRETARY WEEKS won't sue Henry Ford for libel. He'll ask Congress to investigate Ford's charges. This shows a Christian spirit, for no charge could be more serious than Ford's accusation against Weeks. He says the Secretary of War conspired to cripple the United States in case of war by depriving it of a great munitions plant, doing this to please fertilizer manufacturers who fear Ford's promise to make cheap fertilizer at Muscle Shoals.

FORD, who passes rapidly from one cage to another, like the boy at the zoo, now announces a plan to let his employes share in the profits of his railroad.

He will help them buy profit-sharing certificates in instalments from their wages. They may get their money back any time, but must keep their certificates, not sell them, "unless to fellow employes."

RICH SUITOR GRILLED IN SHOOTING

Police Question Maas in Mystery Attack at Home of Wealthy Widow

By Universal Service.

Stamford, Ct., Oct. 15—Milton A. Maas, New York chemical manufacturer, who was wounded Thursday evening in a shooting attack at the home of the comely Mrs. Ida M. Leslie at Sound Beach, Ct., was to be questioned at Stamford Hospital today by James F. Walsh, prosecuting attorney, in an effort to unravel the mystery.

It will be the first time he has been questioned since his brief statement given as he was being removed from the home of the wealthy widow.

ASSAILANT UNKNOWN

At that time he declared he did not know the man who shot him and was at a loss to explain the motive for the attack.

His condition is so favorable that his physician, Dr. George Sherill, consented to an interview with the prosecutor.

SEEK BLACKMAIL MOTIVE.

Maas will be asked to explain any possible motive for blackmail. Since the authorities have entirely abandoned robbery as a motive for the attack, the wounded man will also be questioned to establish whether the jealousy of a possible rival for the affections of Mrs. Leslie might have caused the shooting.

Although no date for the wedding has been set, the 43-year-old widow has admitted to Gustav Fleischmann of Asbury Park Maas' nephew, that they are to be married.

ARMY TRUCKS FOR CHRISTMAS MAIL

Washington, Oct. 15.—Preparations to aid the Postoffice Department in handling the Christmas package jam have been made by the War Department, it was disclosed today in the publication of an order directing corps area commanders to place at the disposal of the postal authorities all motor vehicles not actually needed for military purposes.

P. O. CLERKS ACCUSE BAKER

Charge Undue Influence by Bankers, Preachers and Others of His Friends

Charges that bankers, preachers and others with friends in the postal service have been influencing Postmaster Baker in the selection of "special clerks," local officials of the Federation of Postoffice Clerks today announced that they would send a committee to Mr. Baker asking that the thirty-five clerks, about to be given the special rating, be selected by the seniority principle.

John Mulhyrn, vice-president of Local 100, explained today that these special clerks are given pay increases of $100 and later of another $100 per year. "It has been our policy to ask that these appointments be made according to seniority," said Mrs. Murphy, "provided, of course, the men in line are capable of doing the work. As the government sets the standard by holding annual examinations, it would seem that any man who can pass such an examination is entitled to the increase when his turn comes in order of seniority."

Mr. Murphy pointed out that recently when 82 special clerks were appointed, six younger men were jumped over the heads of seniors. "If the policy of listening to pleas for special consideration is to be followed," said Mr. Murphy, "the postmaster will find every man in the department here knocking on his door."

OPERA SINGER SUES HAIR TONIC MAKER

Berlin, Oct. 15.— Mme. Emmy Destinn, opera singer, has brought a suit against the manufacturer of a hair tonic for $150,000 damages, alleging that the use of the tonic caused nearly all of her hair to fall out. The diva charges that because of the effect of the tonic on her hair her earning capacity as a singer has been greatly impaired. She is supported in her claims by operatic experts who declare that beautiful hair is almost as important as a good voice for a successful operatic career.

OBREGON'S HEART GIVES APPREHENSION

Obregon's condition, while not reported as serious, has caused considerable apprehension in political circles, while recent bulletins from Lake Chaplain are not optimistic.

COTTAGES BURNED ON THE SOUTH SHORE

Marshfield, Oct. 15.—The three mile stretch of summer cottages along the shore at Brant Rock was threatened when two houses, two garages and a wood-working plant in the south end of Island street, Brant Rock were burned here.

HON. SYBIL PHYLLIS GOUGH

Captain Gough, war hero, names three prominent men in suit against beautiful wife.

London, Oct. 15.—Although Queen Mary has more than once delivered herself of heated philippics against the frequency of divorce among people of "quality" in England, the courts there continue to busy themselves with the marital miseries of well-known men and women.

One of the cases in which England is showing great interest is that of Captain Wilfrid Hugh Julian Gough, who fought with the ever-loyal Welch Guards during the war against the Hon. Sybil Phyllis Gough, who gave England something to cheer at two years ago by suddenly appearing as a chorus girl in New York in "The Right Girl."

Captain Gough's complaint is particularly sensational in that he names three extremely well-known Britishers—Augustus John, the famous artist who visited the United States last spring; Baron Maurice de Rothschild, a member of the family whose name is synonymous in Europe with wealth, and Bernard Neidecker, the polo player.

Mrs. Gough is considered one of the most beautiful of King George's millions of subjects. E. O. Hoppe, the English photographer, called her one of the six handsomest women, but when Augustus John had a look at her, he pronounced her indubitably the most beautiful of all women. He manifested his enthusiasm by painting six portraits of her.

SMUGGLER AND ALIENS VICTIMS

Party Dies in the Detroit River While Trying to Cross the U. S.-Canadian Border

Detroit, Oct. 15.—Six persons in a rowboat, piloted by a Canadian, were drowned in the Detroit River, between Rouge and Ecorse, Mich., today, when an unidentified steamer struck the small craft and threw its human cargo into the water.

Abedes Godoshian, forty, of Delray, Mich., was the only one saved.

Eman, twenty-two; Ousanna, eighteen, and Haspert, eighteen, children of Godoshian, and Hagforty, and Vageney, sixteen, children of Godoshian's brother, and the pilot were those lost.

The lake steamer was moving down the river when the accident happened. The rowboat was traveling without lights and was undistinguishable in the dense fog that hung over the water. The steamer struck the boat and buried its occupants into the river. It kept on its course, apparently unaware of the accident.

Abedes Godoshian was pulled from the river by Mike West, a resident of a houseboat on the American side of the river who heard the frantic cries of the floundering persons.

He went to their rescue in a motor launch, but when he reached the scene of the collision, only Abedes was on top of the water. The bodies of the other six were not recovered.

Ecorse police were notified and Abedes was taken to a hospital.

Government immigration authorities believe the victims were being smuggled into the United States from Canada.

RECLAMATION IN PERIL, SAYS WORK

Washington, Oct. 15.—The entire scheme of government reclamation development is endangered by the present situation of the more important projects, Secretary Work declared today in opening the initial session of the fact-finding committee appointed by him to formulate a new reclamation policy. Radical reforms and improvement must be effected, he said, if the settlers and the government's interests are safeguarded.

"Elimination of arid lands by irrigation from goernment funds, as heretofore practiced, is failing on a majority of projects as a business procedure and must be promptly readjusted as to methods of reimbursement for funds appropriated and for the purpose of securing to the settler a permanent home," Secretary Work declared.

Arthur Miller (Mrs. Stokes' mother) at the Hotel Commodore to congratulate her on the successful outcome of her evidence to refute her husband's charges, his well-trained eyes noticed that in the sitting room the portiere on one side was flush against the wall, whereas on the other side a space of six inches intervened between the portiere and the wall.

Dannenberg jerked the portiere aside and revealed a dictograph sufficiently powerful to convey a conversation held in a whisper to the receiving end.

The mouth of the instrument was about seven feet from the floor and was attached to more than sixty feet of dark brown silk wire, slightly thinner than telephone wire.

WIRES CONCEALED.

Strands from the dictograph were cunningly laid along the molding on the walls of the sitting room, which are high enough to conceal the wires from sight.

The wires were traced from the room to the corridor partition, through the fanlight of the door, along the corridor molding, where it was attached to one of the hotel telephone instrument boxes, filled with scores of wires.

There the trail ended, for the time being. Dannenberg said that further investigation was required to trace the wire to the receiving end of the instrument.

NEW INDICTMENTS DUE.

Several persons who have already testified on behalf of the aged New York millionaire hotel owner, against his pretty young wife, are slated to be indicted today or tomorrow, according to persons close to the principals in this amazing five-year-old divorce drama.

Charges will be perjury. Public knowledge that indictments were expected led a crowd to the court house and an air of expectancy was prevalent when the trial opened.

Mrs. Stokes entered looking fresh and radiant. She had just returned from Missouri where she obtained refutation of the testimony of two witnesses that she was in Bunceton in 1904 with Edgar T. Wallace. Wallace is an engineer, now married and living in San Francisco.

Several depositions, said to be gratifying to her, were brought back by Mrs. Stokes. One was from Hayden Moore, a grocer, who alleged he had been offered $1,000 if he would appear at the trial as a witness for Mr. Stokes.

Wilbur and Arthur Wallace, brothers of Edgar T. Wallace, and other residents of Bunceton swore they had never seen Mrs. Stokes before, it was said.

STEUER SILENT

Max D. Steuer, chief of counsel for W. E. D. Stokes, refused to comment on the depositions.

During the rehearing Steuer will ask for a divorce for his client because of Mrs. Stokes' friendship for Wallance, he said.

Witnesses called testified relative to the friendship which Mr. Stokes alleges existed between his wife and Mr. Wallace, it is understood.

Stokes in skull-cap and muffled overcoat has sat through the trial so far, in a detached, though mildly interested, spectator, taking copious notes. Not once has he been observed to have passed one of these notes to any one of his attorneys. Nor has he at any time addressed one of them or in turn been so addressed.

The rich and aged prosecutor of this embittered five year divorce battle appears to be entirely isolated in the courtroom that supplies such familiar environs for him, since he has spent so lavishly of his seventy odd years within their enclosure.

Mrs. Miller, who has been seriously ill since the hysterical outbreak occasioned by the testimony of Elmer Henshaw, chauffeur, that he relations with Mrs. Stokes had been of an "improper nature," only to retract the complete inference of his words, said of the case:

MOTHER IS CONFIDENT.

"We will feel more strongly fortified Monday, and we have learned that nothing is too monstrous for Stokes to throw in my daughter's face.

"I have been pretty sick, and my relatives have wired from Detroit about their coming to take me home, but I cannot leave until I have seen justice, and truth, and decency win in this case. And I do believe that after so many years of suffering there can be no other end to it."

Philip Plevior, sixty years old, of No. 307 Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, was knocked from his fish wagon when a trolley car struck it as Plevior was driving on Washington street, South End, today. He refused treatment at the City Hospital, although doctors diagnosed a possible fracture of the hip.

NEGROES DRUG AND ATTACK MOTHER OF 3

Drugged and attacked by three negroes in Roxbury, Mrs. Anna Kaplan of Worcester, twenty-three years old, white, and the mother of two children, is in a critical condition at the City Hospital.

Special Officer Gilman and Patrolman Sharkey of the Roxbury Crossing police station found Mrs. Kaplan as she staggered from a house at No. 745 Shawmut avenue.

Mrs. Kaplan told the police she went to the Roxbury address to keep an appointment with a negro known to her as George "Sloan" James of Worcester.

SCORES SHOT IN RHINE RIOTS; TEN DEAD

Berlin, Oct. 15 (I.N.S.)—Three persons are dead and many wounded at Meiningen, in the duchy of Saxe-Meiningen, following a violent battle between citizens and Reichswehr, said a dispatch from that place today.

Police in Mayence were forced to fire on rioters who stormed the town hall. Many were wounded.

Later the rioting spread to other sections of the city, and in one clash seven were killed and 100 wounded by police bullets.

German R. R. Men Agree to Work for Invaders

Dusseldorf, Oct. 15 (A.P.)—The German railroad men's organization in the occupied area has approved the order issued in Berlin by Herr Oeser, the Minister of Communications, instructing the men to work for the Franco-Belgian railway administration and to take the required oath, French headquarters announced today.

The Berlin government has explained the oath is considered to have only disciplinary significance, not involving the question of German sovereignty.

VAUDEVILLE STAR SEEKING DIVORCE

New York, Oct. 15.—Katharine Crawford, vaudeville actress, has announced, through her attorneys, that she intends to institute an action to obtain a separation from Arthur Pearson, theatrical producer.

The husband will be charged with abandonment and non-support, the attorneys indicated. Miss Crawford alleges that her love for her husband cooled several months ago, and that she took up her residence in a Broadway hotel.

PINCHOT TELLS COOLIDGE TO 'DRY UP' U. S.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania called upon President Coolidge to take personal charge of dry law enforcement.

In the same address, delivered before a national citizenship conference here, Mr. Pinchot added that the effort should begin at home among high government officials, who, he charged, have become notorious for breaking the law.

Measured by the respect accorded it, he said, the dry law has proved a failure, and he cited these reasons:

That no sincere effort has been made to enforce it.

That the dry bureau is honeycombed with politics and inefficiency.

That the Federal government, alone responsible for the quantities of liquor released, fails to check the flow at its source.

That officials who should help, either violate the law themselves or wink at violations.

Mrs. W. W. Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of prohibition and tax laws, followed Governor Pinchot with what she declared would prove a more effective means of enforcing the dry laws. She said that better results could be obtained by charging offenders with violations of the internal revenue laws, which carry much heavier penalties than does the Volstead Act.

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Known as Keen Sportsman, Says Betty Alden

BAYARD TUCKERMAN, JR.

Mr. Tuckerman of "Savin Farm," North Shore's best known sportsman.

By BETTY ALDEN

BAYARD TUCKERMAN JR'S string of thoroughbreds seem to bring home the blue ribbons wherever they go. Last month the popular master of "Savin Farm," Hamilton, entered some of his mounts at the Groton horse show with the result that Bachelor, Desert Queen and Bunty trotted from the ring proud winners.

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., is probably one of the youngest and keenest sportsman along the Shore, as well as one of the most popular. He's very much interested in the breeding and racing of whippets and owns several of the most fleet-footed of these little creatures to be found in the country.

Hardly less devoted to sports than her husband is Mrs. Tuckerman, the former Phyllis Sears, daughter of Commodore Herbert M. Sears of the Eastern Yacht Club. She is as much wedded to the saddle as her spouse, and the two frequently take the jumps together at the horse shows. The Tuckermans have a trio of youngsters, composed of five-year-old Phyllis and the two-year-old twins, Herbert Sears and Richard Mortimer Tuckerman.

Naturally the master and mistress of "Savin Farm" are among the most prominent riders of the Myopia Hunt Club.

RETURNING to Boston some time ago were Mr. and Mrs. James Amory Parker and their two daughters, the Misses Virginia and Claire Parker. Mrs. Parker and the two girls had planned to spend the Winter in Paris, but changed their plans and will be in Boston this Winter. Miss Virginia Parker, who made her debut last season, is a tall, slender brunette, with masses of dark hair, blue eyes and brilliant coloring.

Virginia Parker.

MRS. WILLIAM H. COOLIDGE of "Blynman Farm," Magnolia, has sailed for a short trip abroad with her daughter, Mrs. Samuel S. Stevens (Isabel Coolidge). Another daughter, Mrs. Geoffrey Story Smith (Katherine Coolidge) has returned to Philadelphia with her husband after visiting for a while at "Blynman Farm." The Summer the young people spent traveling abroad.

JOLLY "ELSE" SEARS recently gave a house party at "Sargent House," the Pride's Crossing Summer home of her aunt, Mrs. Lucius Manlius Sargent. The latter has returned to her town house on Commonwealth avenue for the Winter.

ONE of the season's important fall functions will be the dance which Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Thorndike of Marlboro street are planning to give in honor of their daughter, Miss Isabel Thorndike. The family has been spending the Summer at their place in Bar Harbor, where the pretty debutante seems to have had her share of sub-deb fun and attention.

MRS. CHARLES RANLET and her daughter, Miss Carolyn Ranlet, are to be for the Winter in New York at the Hotel Brevoort instead of occupying their Boston home on est Cedar street. The Ranlets have just returned from extensive travels in Europe and the Far East.

LLOYD GEORGE NOT COMING HERE

Word that reached here today from Winnipeg, Canada, to the effect that David Lloyd George had cut Boston from his itinerary, came as a surprise to prominent Bostonians, who have been grooming the Hub for weeks for the appearance of the statesman.

Lloyd George was to have come here on or about October 31. Scores of invitations had been tendered the statesman by various civic and fraternal societies. The city of Boston had likewise planned dinners and entertainments for his appearance here.

Ill health is given as the cause of the change in Lloyd George's program.

HEARST PARTY FAVORS TRADE WITH SOVIET

By JOHN T. BURKE
Universal Service Radio.

On Board the Leviathan, Oct. 15.—The unofficial Hearst commission, arriving in New York following a three-months' tour of Russia, during which they traversed more than 8,000 miles, after an exhaustive investigation, favors that immediate steps be taken looking toward the establishment of trade relations between the United States and the Soviet republic.

The commission consisted of Senators Ladd and King; Representatives Frear and Johnson and Misses Bowen and Connes, stenographer and interpreter, respectively.

Senator King who has interviewed many great German industrialists said:

"The peace and prosperity of the world depends upon the rehabilitation of Germany and the losing by France of its stranglehold on German production."

The Senator believes, from evidence obtained first-hand in Russia and Germany, that Communists and Monarchists in Germany are working together to upset the Moderates and Socialists.

DUCHESS WILL BE FEATURED IN NEW FILM

THE GLAMOUR of the silver sheet, which brought Lady Diana Manners of England into the histronic fold, has drawn and held another member of the nobility. She is the Duchess D'Lanti a member of an old family of Italian aristocrats, who left Europe after the war to find a career in the United States.

Duchess D'Lanti

Known to the picture world as Stella de Lanti, the duchess did one of her first "bits" in the "Wasters." Now she has been engaged for a part in the forthcoming "Why Men Leave Home."

WANDA HAWLEY steps into the arena and announces that she is against the "star system" of moving pictures and would be pleased to argue it with anybody. The starring system, she claims, kills versatility and initiative, which, she adds, constitutes true artistry. Recently, Miss Hawley herself starred in "Pyres of Fate" and "The Lights of London." She insists, however, that she is opposed to the system.

Not that there ever was the slightest danger in her case, but as the First National insists upon a "morality clause" in all contracts she just signed the paper and let it go at that. Autumn Smartness Along "The Street"

WE have been accepting from Paris so long that unless a garment bears a Paris label or a hat a Paris tip of some very well known house of the French capital we are apt to feel out of the picture. The peerage of the French is conceded in creating the clothes that adorn the feminine. Truly when worn in the Parisian manner, taking into consideration their natural art of blending colors, achieving little individual touches or the fineness of their handiwork, they are the peers. And their hats! in the hand seemingly simple, but what style they take on when covering the head! Granted that original models are very pleasing and that cleverness here receives its inspiration from there.

Along "The Street" are many houses bringing to you direct importations, and very lovely they are this season.

An inspirational house of our own, one whose label means much to "those in the know" because of its individuality in suits—indeed I can pick their models in any gathering from the distinctiveness of the sleeves alone—is showing one of their new thoughts in a two-piece cloth suit. This model, universally becoming, straight in line, comes in the new Nicotine brown —trimming of new brown tone monkey fur—with panels weighted down at the sides with this same fur. This house is on upper Boylston street. Neighboring just next door, the entree into whose establishment immediately sells the eye I found the most pleasing of the new thought in clothes.

FROM this house this model, an interpretation of the continuance of the straight chemise effect. The hip gathering and contrasting sash-ends break its severity. Its fabric a rich soft velvet—its color that rare shade of apple green—its simplicity becoming to any age.

To bring out effectiveness of any costuming for evening one's arms, neck and face require minute and skilful treatment. A new shop just opened by a woman of the race—who seem born with lovely skins and the intellect to keep them—is here from London. Her Washington Salon numbers among its clientele the feminine leaders of the diplomatic set—her treatment is her own—a strap muscle method. The creams used are selected for your type of skin. This is found in the Lloyd Building.

Right in the heart of "The Street" one woman creates her own models, studies your type—the very real secret of the well dressed—designing and making to "those in the know" because of its individuality in suits—indeed I can pick their models in any gathering from the distinctiveness of the sleeves alone—is showing one of their new thoughts in a two-piece cloth suit. Diamond Cut Diamond

The diamond is such a hard stone that one can be cut only by its fellow—whence comes the phrase, "Diamond cut diamond."

The full beauty of the diamond remained unrevealed until about 1450. Then one Louis de Berquem revolutionized the lapidary's art with what he called his "perfect cut."

Charles the Bold of Burgundy, hearing of his skill, sent three large diamonds to be recut by him. These stones have all become historic.

One, called the "Sancy," was lost by Charles at the battle of Granson in 1476. Today it is supposed to be in Russia and is valued at one hundred and eighty-six thousand dollars.

The second stone is among the Austrian crown jewels. It is cut to resemble a star and weighs 139 carats. The third and smallest stone is in the tiara of Pope Pius XI.

We have been diamond merchants for one hundred and twenty-three years. The experience and judgment gained by each generation are at the service of customers today. We believe that every diamond that we offer is worthy of its price and of your approval.

Home Face Peeling Becomes Popular

Use Ordinary Mercolized Wax

No complexion treatment yet discovered seems to have become so generally popular as the mercolized wax process. Evidently the reason is that the method actually gets rid of a bad complexion, which can hardly be said of any other. To temporarily hide or bleach the defective skin with cosmetics cannot compare with the effect of literally removing the skin itself. Mercolized wax takes off the offending surface skin in fine particles, a little at a time, until every trace of it left. The new complexion thus produced exhibits a healthy glow and girlish beauty obtainable in no other way. This wax, which you can get at your druggist's (an ounce will do), is applied at night like cold cream, and washed off mornings.

LANDLORD TOOK AWAY DOORS AND WINDOWS

That her landlord, John Bannin, No. 297 C street, removed the doors and windows from her second-story apartment at No. 699 East Fifth street, South Boston, in an effort to force her to vacate the premises, is charged by Mrs. Luella Cuniff, who has appealed to the police.

Bannin replaced the windows and doors when ordered to do so by Captain Rooney of the City Point police station, but protested he had removed the doors and windows to repair them, and that he wished the family to vacate so he could renovate the house.

Mrs. Cuniff declared her five children and the adult members of her family were forced to sleep for three nights with every bit of clothing in the house piled on the beds to keep them warm during the nights the windows were out.

The Cuniffs have been granted two stays of a writ of ejection since last September. They claim they have been unable to secure a residence within their means anywhere in the South Boston district.

According to Mrs. Cuniff, the windows were first removed, and when that failed to drive the family out the landlord removed the doors, leaving the apartment open to intruders and night prowlers. It was then that she reported the matter to the police. A hearing is scheduled in the South Boston Court today.

O'NEILL'S PLAYS WIN FAVOR IN GERMANY

Berlin, Oct. 14.—Eugene O'Neill's plays are epidemic in Berlin these days and threaten to rival those of George Bernard Shaw and Oscar Wilde. "Anna Christie" has opened with success at the Deutsches Theatre and companies are rehearsing "Emperor Jones," "The Hairy Ape" and other plays of the sea.

Jackie Coogan has also won great favor among the Berlin movie fans. "My Boy" has been shown here and promises to run all Winter.

Gilda Gray Gives New Hints on How to Keep Figure Perfect

GILDA GRAY ILLUSTRATES

The fourth of a series of hints by Gilda Gray, famous Follies dancer, to Boston women on how to keep their figures perfect is published by the Boston American today.

The series is causing wide comment. Exercise and know the glow of a perfect figure, is Miss Gray's advice. Here is Exercise No. 4:

Swing toes forward and try to touch them with finger-tips. Back to position A. Repeat five times.

Position A. Inhale, slowly lean torso backward as far as possible, touching back of head with palms. Exhale to position. Repeat five times.

PLAY WRITER NOW WESTERN UNION BOY

Morris Yellin, No. 11 Dana street, Revere, once writer of Jewish one and two-act plays, is now a messenger for the Western Union in Boston.

Mr. Yellin is a half century old and has had a varied life. As a writer of playlets he was a friend of Morris Gest, the famous theatrical producer, having known him for the past quarter of a century.

Mr. Yellin dons a Western uniform every afternoon at 3 o'clock and works delivering messages out of the Congress street office until 2 o'clock each morning.

Born fifty years ago in Grodna, Russia, Mr. Yellin came to America thirty years ago. He received a university education in Russia but did not indulge in the urge for writing until in this country.

From twenty to twenty-five one and two-act plays, all in the Jewish language, came from his pen and were produced in Jewish theatres in Boston and throughout the country. He still writes character sketches in the Jewish language for New York papers printed in Hebrew.

Mr. Yellin has a wife and two sons, Eli, eighteen and Ruben, fourteen. While his ability to write has never made him independent, he still writes as enthusiastically, though he seldom does a playlet now. He has been a telegraph messenger for six years. The family have lived in Boston and Malden.

SITE FOR PARK ON COREY HILL SOUGHT

More land for park purposes on Corey Hill, Brookline, will be the subject for debate at the special town meeting tomorrow night.

The proposal has been made to force, but no action taken.

Boy 14, Serving 17 Years, Has Jail All to Himself

Danville, Pa., Oct. 15.—The Montour County Jail, which during the greater part of last year was without an occupant, has a prisoner.

Elmer Washburn, a fourteen-year-old boy, is the lone inmate. He was transferred here from the Eastern Penitentiary, Philadelphia, to serve a seventeen-year sentence for murder.

He is enjoying his surroundings.

CHURCH COUNCIL TO BREAK LINES

Springfield, Oct. 15.—A further breaking down of the once rigid lines between Protestant denominations is expected to result from the biennial meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches, which convenes here tomorrow afternoon and will continue for one week.

Plans for a closer unity between Congregationalists and other denominations—particularly the Protestant Episcopal church—which have been under discussion for some time, will reach a climax at its convention.

HEAVY DAMAGE BY BIG FLOOD IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 15 (A.P.)—Oklahoma City's fifth flood of the year already has inundated virtually the same territory covered last June, and the swift-moving North Canadian River is reaching the record flood crest.

By tomorrow the river will have added an additional five feet to its present stage of fourteen feet, it is predicted. The stream now is an impassable mass from one-half mile to seven miles wide. Ten miles within the capital workers have been sandbagging the embankments of the city water works dam since Saturday.

Dozens of acres of the walnut grove section are under water and the river has flooded the main streets of Capitol Hill and Packing Town, suburbs, where more than 5,000 persons live.

Westward from Oklahoma City river, points from twenty-five to 150 miles distant report the most serious flood damage in their history.

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, Oct. 13th, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.00 cents to 20.50 cents per pound, and averaged 13.8½ cents per pound."—Advt.

RUM VICTIM DIES IN POLICE ROOM

An unidentified man, about 35 years old, who told the police he had been assaulted, died in the Central Square police station, Cambridge, as he was being booked on a charge of drunkenness.

Before he was brought to the police station, the man was taken to the Cambridge City Hospital, examined by physicians and discharged as an alcoholic.

He was taken into custody by the police at Walsworth and Amherst streets, Cambridge, where he was found unconscious by two citizens. The latter told the police they had seen him fighting with another man who fled at their approach.

The body was removed to Cambridge City Morgue, where it will await an autopsy to determine cause of death.

Could you do this?

The right way to make tea.

Rinse out teapot with boiling water. Put one teaspoonful of tea in pot for each cup of tea.

Pour freshly boiled, bubbling water on the tea-leaves. Steep for five or six minutes. Always serve with milk or cream.

One pound of Tetley's Tea makes 200 cups.

IF you lived in England you would drink tea every morning before breakfast. And you would like it. You would look forward to it every day and often. Because it would be real tea, made the right way.

Look at the recipe printed here. Unless you make it this way you do not know the real deliciousness of tea. This one recipe is the only way to bring out all the real tea flavor; it is the only way to make tea that will invigorate and refresh you on every occasion. And it is the easiest recipe in the world to follow.

Don't be satisfied with imitation tea. Try a pot of real tea made the right way—to-day.

Let Tetley Help

All tea is not alike. Crops from many different gardens must be blended to produce the tea you buy. Your enjoyment of tea depends upon what brand you buy—upon the packer's ability to secure the finest crops, upon the skill and accuracy with which these teas are blended. Because Tetley's ability to do these things is unrivalled, Tetley's Orange Pekoe Tea is the choice of discriminating tea drinkers the world over.

7 MEXICANS IN RACE FOR PRESIDENCY

Mexico City, Oct. 15 (I.N.S.).—The fight for the presidency of Mexico is now seven-cornered, with daily resignations from the Obregon Cabinet. Secretary of War Serrano, the only member remaining, it is said, will quit soon to aid General P. Elias Calles. Besides Calles the candidates are: Adolfo De La Huerta, Salvadore Alvorado, General Angels Flores, Paul Madero, brother of the late President Francisco Madero; Antonio Villareal of Nuevo Leon and Roque Estrada.

BAY STATE MEN IN PLANE DROP; ALL SAVED

Relatives were reassured today by wire of the safety of six Greater Boston delegates to the Legion convention at San Francisco who were buffeted by heavy seas off Catalina Island when a flying boat made a forced landing in the Pacific Ocean.

The men were rescued after two hours adrift by a passing vessel. The legioners were: Attorney Frank Goode, brother of former Mayor Goode of Cambridge, vice-commander of the Massachusetts Department of the A. L., and commander of Cambridge Post; Henry Neolls of No. 14 Mount Vernon street, Malden, former commander of the Malden Post and naturalization examiner for the Department of Justice; David Mirabella, assistant clerk of South Boston court; Charles Connors of Roxbury; Robert White, former commander of Watertown Post; and Matthew P. Scullne of No. 1221 Beacon street, Brookline.

San Francisco, Oct. 15.—San Francisco got out the old service flag and welcomed the nation's defenders—both past and present— at the opening of the American Legion Convention today.

Boston and New England is very much in the limelight of Legion circles today.

First because Major General Clarence R. Edwards is riding at the top of a boom, "Edwards for National Commander." Second, because Boston is favored as the site of the 1924 Legion convention.

Open warfare on the Ku Klux Klan is one of the real big issues to come before the convention, it was asserted by various leaders. Groups opposed to the Klan are intent on bringing the matter to a showdown at this convention, delegation leaders told Universal Service.

The program for establishment of a civic betterment bureau, advanced by Iowa through past commander Hanford Macnider, will be adopted, according to preliminary tabulation of sentiment.

Political lines were being drawn as rival candidates for the national commandership increased their activity.

Colonel Joe Thompson of Pennsylvania, Gen. James A. Drain, of the District of Columbia and Bob Quinn of California, were among those most mentioned by the leaders of incoming delegations.

One of the big features of the convention is the general satisfaction with the operation of the United States Veterans Bureau.

Last Day to Pay State Income Tax Is With Us

STATE HOUSE NEWS FOUNDER DEAD AT 70

Charles E. Mann, former newspaperman and founder of the State House News service, passed away at his home, No. 14 Woodland street, Malden, today, after an illnes of long standing.

He was seventy years old. "Charlie" Mann was one of the most widely known men in Greater Boston. He had a host of friends because of his more than thirty years association in politics and newspaper circles.

Chas. E. Mann

Twenty-five years ago he started the State House News Bureau, which has grown steadily and is now a source of news supply for scores of papers in New England.

He was secretary and clerk of the old railroad commission, which later became the Public Service Commission, and is now the Public Utilities Commission.

Dorothy Mann, a daughter, a special writer for the Boston Transcript, survives him.

HUSBAND FEARS HIS WIFE HAS ELOPED

Mrs. Ruby Hickey, twenty-two years old, of No. 4 Ringold street, South End, who disappeared from her home more than a week ago, eloped with an old sweetheart, her husband, Albert Hickey, twenty-eight years old, believes.

Hickey, accompanied by his three-year-old son, Harold, has searched this city and Providence in the vain hope of finding his wife. Both father and child are grief-stricken over the woman's disappearance.

"Ruby always loved theatres and the bright lights," Hickey said. "And never went out much and lived a quiet life, however. I'm afraid she has gone away with a man she knew before I married her."

HEALTH TESTS FOR BABIES TO CONTINUE

MAY LOUISE COYLE

Five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coyle of No. 17 Walnut street, Neponset, who won first prize in Better Babies Contest at the Health Show, with score of 99.5 per cent.

Attention, mothers.

If your baby was not examined at the Health Show in Mechanics Building last week don't fret. The Boston American has made arrangements for the free examination of the thousands of kiddies whose parents desire it.

Expert physicians employed by the City of Boston and State of Massachusetts will continue where the Health Show specialists left off.

Babies living within the city of Boston will be examined without cost by expert physicians in charge of Fred C. Bailey through special arrangement of this newspaper with State Health Commissioner Eugene Kelley.

Definite announcement as to where these examinations will be conducted and when they will begin will be made in the Boston American in a few days. The first of the examinations will probably be held some time this week.

Watch the American, mothers, for the announcement.

Prize Baby Raised on Plain Food

What makes a perfect baby?

"The mother who wants to raise a perfect kiddie must have her career in the home. She has no time to join clubs or go into business or politics."

This is the opinion of the mother of Boston's perfect baby.

Little Muriel Louise Coyle, age five years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coyle, Jr., No. 17 Walnut street, Neponset, will receive the silver cup today awarded to the best local kiddie at the Better Babies Conference in Mechanics Hall. Muriel scored 99.5 perfect.

The highest scoring boy is Lloyd Alliston Jenkins, age forty-two months, with a record of 97. Lloyd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jenkins, No. 407 Broadway, Cambridge.

OLD FASHIONED HOME.

"A simple old fashioned home is the secret of success in bringing up healthy babies," says Mrs. Coyle with a smile. She leaned forward with a slight gesture indicating her sunny little apartment. "You see everything here is very simple. But we have plenty of sunshine—plenty of fresh air and I am always here to take care of the children myself."

"A nurse or paid assistant," Mrs. Coyle explained, "can never give the same care as a mother.

"So many babies are not strong and healthy because they never have enough of their own mother's care and affection," she continued. "A mother must give herself entirely to her children.

"No, indeed, it is not a sacrifice," she protested indignantly. "It is a great privilege." In a simple light

Whipping as a means of punishment is scornfully rejected by this young mother.

Mary Louise, in a red gingham dress with her short bobbed hair flying, rushed in the room breathless.

"Mamma, my baby got the prize," she interrupted excitedly, holding up a large doll.

Mrs. Coyle explained with a smile, "All the children in the neighborhood are holding a health show for their dollies, with Mary Louise as judge."

Woman Sells Her Hair To Pay Rent

ABUSE BY HUSBAND CLAIMED

Former Leominster Girl Disappears in Newark After Writing to Mother

Leominster, Oct. 15.—After writing her mother here, complaining of the trials of her married life and telling of having been obliged to sell her hair to pay the rent, Mrs. Gladys Schofield of Newark, N. J., disappeared.

The letter, received by the mother, Mrs. Sadie Wilcox, of No. 93 Main street, told of abuse by an alleged insanely jealous husband. The latter, James Schofield, the girl stated, had many times threatened to maim her, and at one time chased her with a bread knife.

Schofield, who is now in this city, told the police that his wife disappeared after running out of their home in Newark yelling:

"He is going to kill me. He has a razor in his hand."

The husband denied that he had threatened the girl or that he had ever chased her with either a knife or a razor.

While Schofield was in this city his mother telegraphed Mrs. Wilcox telling of the girl's disappearance and adding that the husband was very ill.

AN ALL DAY OCCURRENCE

KINGSTON, OTIS AND SUMMER STREETS, WHERE TRAFFIC RULES ARE DEAD LETTERS

PEAT BOG FIRE CHECKED BY HEAVY RAIN

Rain, long waited, fell in a steady downpour today and accomplished more toward extinguishing the peat bog fire in Norwood, Dedham, Westwood and Canton, than an army of volunteers and regular firemen has been able to effect in weeks.

The fire started on its ninth week of continuous burning today. It has spread over more than 1,500 acres of swamp land and belched forth smoke that drifted over a territory of thirty square miles, in which motor and train traffic was slowed up appreciably.

Despite the work of six big water pumps manned Sunday by fifty Norwood firemen, the peat bog regained on the workers. A steady wind carried the blaze beyond its old limits. State Fire Warden Hutchins reported that only a steady week of rain will finish the fire, but today's rain instilled confidence in the struggle to put it out.

Two new pumps, for which Governor Cox and the executive council appropriated $3,000, are to be used in the work tomorrow.

"If you want to see traffic properly jammed every five minutes of the day have a photograph taken of the intersection of Summer, Kingston and Otis streets. It's right outside your office," a reader wrote the American.

The suggestion was followed.

Behold the answer.

And the amazing part of it is not a single traffic officer is stationed at this intersection of three of the busiest streets in Boston, one, Summer street, a main artery to the shipping district in one direction, and out of Boston via the South Station in the opposite direction.

HEAVY TRAFFIC ON NEW HAVEN

Washington, Oct. 15.—Traffic handled by the New Haven railroad on the first five months has averaged higher than any similar period in the history of the road, E. J. Pearson, president of the road, made this statement after he had visited the White House and discussed transportation problems with President Coolidge. "A high class service as represented in special train schedules for direct car service, and a similar record in handling less than car load freight show good operation by the New Haven road," he added.

DEATH CHEATED R. I. MAN FROM FINDING TUT

New York, Oct. 15.—Theodore Davis, wealthy Newport, R. I., attorney and eminent archaeologist, died when his excavations had led him to within twenty yards of the entrance to the tomb of King Tutankh-amen, discovered last December by Lord Carnarvon of England, according to Arthur Weigall, former Inspector-general of antiquities in Egypt, and intimate associate of Davis.

The two men, Weigall said, had already discovered the tombs of Queen Ty, King Akhenten and Prince Yua, all close relatives of Tut-ankh-amen when Davis, an elderly man, died from natural causes.

When Lord Carnarvon and Howard Carter obtained the concession to proceed with Davis' work from the Egyptian government, it was discovered after the work had been in progress a few weeks that Davis had been within twenty yards of the entrance to the tomb, the finding of which caused Lord Carnarvon to be accredited the greatest Egyptologist.

"If Davis had lived and we had energetically pursued our work for another few days," said Weigall, "an American would now be hailed as the world's greatest archaeologist."

BOY RESCUED AFTER FALL INTO RIVER

John E. Daniels, wealthy leather merchant, dove into the Charles River near the Weston Bridge and rescued from drowning Curtis Genoung, five years old, of Merrill road, Medford.

The boy was playing in the water on a float. As Daniels drove by in his limousine, the boat tipped and the boy was plunged into ten feet of water. Daniels heard the boy's cries for help and brought his car to a sudden stop, and without waiting to remove any clothing dove into the river and rescued the boy, after he had gone down once.

The rescued boy was taken by Daniels to the home of William Rogers, No. 69 Evergreen avenue, Allandale, where he was visiting. Young Genoung suffered no ill effects from his experience.

Daniels is president and treasurer of the John E. Daniels Leather Company. He lives at No. 39 Adams street, Brookline.

STOMACH FIRST, SAYS FRENCH

Scion of a Wealthy Family Takes Up His New Job Driving Cab for Meal Ticket

New York, Oct. 15.—"Most of my troubles have come through my fight to stand on my own feet. I failed in Wall Street because of that and I've had a hard time since for the same reason. But the law of compensation must begin to operate some time. I'm going to get back all I lost through my own efforts."

This hope was expressed by Francis O. French, Harvard graduate and former wealthy broker, who began today his career as a taxi-cab driver. He left his modest furnished room at No. 18 West Seventy-Second street and stepped into a cab, as he has done hundreds of times before—but this time he rode on the driver's seat and cruised Manhattan in search of "fares."

WANTS OWN HACK

If he has any concern over a future, which for some time must consist of hard work, Mr. French's manner does not show it. The broker who a year ago hoped to "make a killing in the market" has become a chauffeur who is looking forward to owning his own "hack."

Mr. French, who is the son of Amos Tuck French of Tuxedo Park, New York and Paris, and is related to William H. Vanderbilt, Lady Cheylesmore of London and other leaders of society, was divorced here several months ago by Mrs. Eleanor Burrill French.

He is taking up his novel occupation in spite of his family's murmurings and their offerings of more lucrative alternatives.

Mr. French's philosophy of life is responsible for his present tribulations. His domestic difficulties began when he insisted on leaving the fine home in which he had lived.

He wanted to live within his reserved income. In the readjustment of his affairs he lost his wife, control of his two little children, and the luxury to which he had been accustomed. And now he is a taxi-cab driver.

THIS IS NO LARK.

He said:

"I am not going on a lark. This decision of mine has been made after careful consideration. I think I can make a success of it. I am going to work day and night to do it. And if there is opportunity offered me for additional employment after my hours I am going to take it.

"The quickest man in this country is the one who has a trade. He always has something to fall back upon. I can't say which is the greater evil—too much or too little money. I think, however, that wealth tends to blunt one's energy.

"And the man who has energy can always make money. Wealth has done one thing for me. Having had automobiles of my own, I can now make a living by driving one.

CONSIDERS HIS STOMACH.

"Of course, I have met with criticism. My father, who has always been most kind, says it is not the occupation for an educated man. He has offered suggestions and mare other plans for me.

"But I've tried too long to be independent to give up now. Some of my friends say, 'Fine.' Others say something else.

"But it doesn't matter whether you earn with the hands or with the brain you must always consider the stomach.

"As for my future associates, I will say that the chauffeur army is much maligned. They always get the small end of the horn when there is a question about the responsibility or an accident. I think they're a pretty good bunch and nobody can deny that they are good driverns.

Composer Dead

George Elbridge Whiting, for many years one of Boston's leading organists and widely known as a composer, is dead in Cambridge at the age of eighty-one years, as a result of a shock suffered several days ago.

AUTOSTROP RAZOR FOR SHAVE THAT IS A PLEASURE

ordinary man takes not more than three baths a week. A large number of men take the bath but once a week—Saturday night.

A funny thing about this bathing business is this: You never hear a man complaining about being scalded by the hot water he used in the bath. Likewise, you never hear a man complain about the icy coldness of the bath water.

On the other hand it is a common thing to hear men complain about how their razor "pulled my beard out by the roots this morning."

What is the answer? Simply this. The ordinary man of the street does not pay as much attention to his razor as he does to the bath water—although he shaves every day and bathes not more than three times a week.

The Boston American offers a solution of this problem by giving its readers a genuine Auto-Strop safety razor complete with strop and handsome case for only $6 cents and two razor coupons clipped from the Boston American on two consecutive days.

No more need for any man to complain about his razor any more than he does about the bath. The little Auto-Strop will be ready to give him a clean, smooth shave with no pulling and no chance to cut the face. This little razor is one of the greatest blessings that has been handed over to shaving mankind. This is the opportunity of a lifetime to get one. Never before in the history of shaving has the Auto-Strop been offered by a newspaper on the same conditions. Perhaps the opportunity will never be presented again to the reading public of New England.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

You cannot afford to pass this opportunity by. You insist on having your bath water at the proper temperature. Why not insist on having a good razor to take your daily shave? Think it over and clip the coupons before it is too late.

You will find a list of distributing stations printed in this paper. Look the list over and find the one nearest your home and go there at once with your coupons and 56 cents. And if you would rather, just come into the business office of the Boston American at No. 80 Summer street and get your razor here.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

A Delightful Romance with an Unusual Heroine

This Story Will Be Shown Soon in Motion Pictures Starring Marion Davies at One of Your Favorite Theatres in Boston

THE STORY SO FAR:

Larry Delavan, a fashionable young man in the days when Fulton was perfecting his steamboat in New York, expects that his stepfather will leave him his large fortune. When John Jacob Astor reads the will he discovers that all the property goes to a nephew, Patrick O'Day, in Ireland. Astor is made trustee and Larry guardian of the heir. Delavan is terribly disappointed. The O'Day family is about to be evicted from their poor home in Ireland, when a strange solicitor appears and informs them of their good fortune. Patricia, disguised as her brother, and her father arrived in New York.

Pat (Marion Davies) is reprimanded by Larry Delavan

By Rida Johnson Young,

Whose Plays Have Won Her a High Place Among American Playwrights.

"Little Old New York," from the Broadway Success of That Name, by Rida Johnson Young, Has Been Created Into a Superlative Motion Picture by Cosmopolitan Productions—Direction of Sidney Olcott—Adapted by Luther Reed.

LARRY rose late, when he went in to breakfast Pat was in the dining room. And Larry, to his disgust, saw the boy picking up the dishes from which he had been eating. Pat checked himself at the look in Larry's eyes. But when Larry reached for his cup Pat was before him, ready to pour his coffee. Larry stirred for a moment; then snatched the pot.

"Such things are for servants to do—or girls," he said.

Reilley came in just then, and Larry, in relief, turned to him.

"How is Mr. O'Day this morning, Reilley?" he asked.

"Sure, he's better the day," said Reilley. "I was not a surgeon in President Washington's army for nothing."

Pat listened. She was relieved: Reilley's words gave her more hope for her father than she had dared to entertain since her brother's death. She was easier in her mind, too; so far, at least, she had not been discovered. But she must be on her guard, since her father insisted that she should go on with this monstrous deception.

Pat scarcely knew what she thought of Larry Delavan. He was, certainly, far from being the monster of cruelty and avarice her father had portrayed. He had been more too kind, but Pat could enter into his feelings. And if he knew! Knew that the fortune was really his; that she and her father were impostors, cheating him out of his own!

Ah, well, he must just not find out! She listened while Larry and Reilley talked. And, unconsciously, she did a thing that, had she thought, she would have cut off her hand rather than do.

In a bowl on the table were flowers from the garden that Reilley had plucked and had, man-like, put into the bowl without any attempt at arrangement. Her fingers itched to be at them; gradually they had their way.

She stood, bending over the flowers. And suddenly Reilley saw what she was doing; the amazement in his eyes made Larry, too, look at Pat. He and Reilley exchanged glances, then Larry, angry and disgusted, spoke.

"For heaven's sake, stop acting like a girl!" he said. "It's my job to make a man of you—and I see I've no sinecure."

Delavan spoke sharply, but there was no ill nature in his voice; it was such a reproof as a boy might well expect a half a dozen times a day, from even the kindest of guardians. But in her overwrought and nervous state it was too much for Pat—to say nothing of the agony of fear that rose at that stern command not to act like that she knew she was—a girl! The tears came to her eyes; try as she would she could not drive them back, and turned away, that they might not see.

But she was too late. Larry, astonished, got up and crossed to her; took her by her shoulders, and in spite of her resistance, swung her around to face him.

"For heaven's sake!" he exclaimed.

"He's crying, Reilley! Here, boy, stop it!"

And that, naturally, only made her cry the harder.

"Baby!" said Larry contemptuously. "I suppose we'll have to get him a rocking horse or a jumping jack, Reilley!"

"A month?" he said. "You are sure? If we could count upon that absolutely we could go on. We could take certain risks—knowing the money was to be in hand—"

"I am sure as I am that I see my house," said Larry. "If that will serve your turn—count upon it!"

"That will save us," said Vandeford. "One moment—we must consider ways and means. We have exhausted our credit with Mr. Schuyler's bank—but if you indorsed our note?" It would mean interest to pay the money to him, instead of us, within the month. And we must have cash, at once."

Feels Confident

"As you please," said Larry. "Yes—upon the security that I can offer I feel sure that Mr. Schuyler will let you draw the money—even to-day. Meet me at the bank in an hour."

They shook hands with him upon that, and left him well pleased. And Pat, more conscience-stricken than ever, wishing that she could help him, went to meet Larry as he came back into the house. He brushed by her without noticing her; went into the big room of the house, and to his desk.

It was a disorderly affair; its confusion went straight to Pat's heart as she followed him, quiet as a mouse, and stood looking over his shoulder as he sat down.

Larry himself looked a little unpoised—he ran his hand through his mass of papers in the desk. Bills—bills—piled high. Of late, sure of his inheritance, he had left himself no hand upon his credit without thought or concern. And now he had come to the end of the time they would all be down upon him, now that the news of Pat's coming was out, demanding their pounds of flesh.

Bad News Travels Fast

"I see you have heard the news of my misfortune," Larry was saying. "Bad news travels fast."

"I'm afraid it is bad news indeed for me," said Fulton, gloomily. "We had counted upon you. I understand that it is no fault of yours that you cannot come to our assistance—but I greatly fear that this means the end, for a long time at least, of our hopes of the Clermont."

All this was as so much Greek to Pat. But the look in Larry's eyes was quite enough to read. Grief and humiliation both were in it.

"I am more sorry than I can say," he said. "It grieves me to the heart to be the cause of your embarrassment, I assure you."

He looked about him. And suddenly his eyes lighted up.

"Gentlemen!" he said. "I had promised you ten thousand dollars to-day. I cannot keep that promise. But you may have the money within a month, if that will do."

Fulton looked up, hope renewed in his eye. Vandeford looked hard at Larry.

A Charming Serial of Love and Adventure in the Picturesque Days of the Beginnings of the Astor and Vanderbilt Fortunes

Pat did her best, but her soul still shook her, and after a moment Larry turned away in angry disgust and went out of the room. She looked up quickly as he went; then turned imploring eyes to Reilley, who only shook his head mournfully.

"You'll not go for such a one alone, that read, Master Pat," he said. "He'll never have a winning dog for one that comes running on his belly. He's all for courage and strength."

Pat, disconsolate, feeling that she had no friend at all in this land, so far from home, wandered into the next room. She saw Larry in the garden, talking solemnly to two young men—Fulton and Vanderbilt—although as yet she did not know that. And quite shamelessly, standing in the open window, but shielded from their view, she listened.

"Are there a lot of things that you do not eat and keep on eating simply because you like them, when you know that they are not good for you?

Do you often decline to eat things that don't practically everybody likes but that you have never tried to eat simply because there is something about them that doesn't appeal to you? "Gracious, I wouldn't taste it—it looks so slimy!" exclaimed an esthetic young lady.

"Macaroni! Looks like snakes? Ugh, not for me!" exclaimed another of the same type.

An English gentleman and his grown son were visiting an American family where all luxuries, they, for the first time in their lives, were served with griddle cakes, butter and maple syrup.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"YOU'LL have another allnight, when Ralph comes back from his wild goose chase and reports nothing doing," Jim frowned.

I opened my lips to speak. Then, realizing that I couldn't trust myself to say a word, I turned slowly and started from the room. Just as I reached the door the telephone rang. The instrument was at my elbow. I picked it up.

"Hello, Anne—that you?" asked Betty's voice. "I want to see you at once, dear. How about coming over and having dinner with me?"

When Betty telephoned to ask me to come over and have dinner with her, it was on the tip of my tongue to ask her how she had guessed I was going to be alone. But both Jim's presence and the feeling that there was no use in discussing the matter over the telephone, restrained me. So I merely said I'd be glad to come and turned to tell Jim that I was going out.

"Suit yourself," he said, struggling into his dress shirt. "But if you listen to me, you'll stay home and take it easy. This business of thinking you've got to have someone to talk everything over with, is a fool piece of feminine weakness and I've no patience with it."

"Betty said she wanted to see me," I protested. "That may mean she—needs me. I wouldn't want to fail her."

"All right," said Jim, "you alone." But don't worry if I get home even later than you do. There's a dance at one of the big studios after the dinner."

When I arrived at Betty's there was something in the tenderness of her greeting which frightened me. I felt it was composed of equal parts of pity and love.

But all through dinner she skilfully confined our conversation to a discussion of the "clew" I'd told her about when I left the office so hastily that afternoon. If I didn't know Betty so well, I might have thought she had invited me over to dinner, because she was so anxious for news of Neal. At the end of the meal, she led me to her cosy den, and went on in a tone of continuing our conversation.

"It's a wonderful thing to have a friend like Ralph Lacy. I don't know any other man who would do you a magnificent service without any more glory seeking or emphasis than if he were merely offering to walk across the city to do an errand for you."

"Ralph's a wonderful man," I agreed.

"How did Jim take the news?" asked Betty casually.

"Jim's skeptical," I answered briefly.

"About Ralph—or Neal?"

"Jim has a tremendous regard for Ralph," I said, glad that I could be so whole-hearted about it. "But he doesn't feel enthusiastic about—the success of the trip."

SECRETS OF HEALTH

HAVE YOU ANY FOOD PREJUDICES?

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

THAT is to say, are there a lot of things that you do not eat simply because you will not?

Dietetic prejudices are generally contracted in childhood and come from permitting children to pick and choose at the table or worse yet, in the pantry.

Nothing is more conducive to the sensitive habit in children than wholesome outdoor exercise, and plenty of it, combined with normal diversion at the table that will make their attention away from the particular articles of food. Under these circumstances any simple reason for refusing dinner and devour without question.

And the advice in this particular that is good for the child is equally good for the grownups.

DR. CALDWELL'S

SYRUP PEPSIN

brought vigor by morning

How To Keep A Child Healthy

A GENERATION ago parents thought that sickness was a part of a child's life, but we know better now. The secret is in the food the mother allows the child to eat, and in watching that elimination occurs regularly two or three times a day. Mrs. F. Russell of 19,141 Havana Ave., Detroit, Mich., keeps her family of so young children in perfect health with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. H. L. Smith of 319 Maple Ave., East Pittsburg, Pa., says her family of three children have never been sick a day since giving them Syrup Pepsin.

A Substitute for Physics

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and suitable aromatics. The formula is on every package. You will find you do not have to force children to take it, and it is much better for them than castor oil, calomel or coal-tar drugs like phenolphthalein even if covered with sugar or chocolate. Syrup Pepsin is mild and gentle in action and your child will have an easy passage without griping or strain. It does not contain narcotics, and you can give it with absolute safety to an infant at the breast.

"Magic" in a Teaspoonful

Every store that sells medicines sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. Give half a teaspoonful to any ailing baby or child at night when you put it to bed and you will find a happy, laughing youngster in the morning. Take Syrup Pepsin yourself when constipated, and give it to any member of the family young or old, for any ailment due to constipation, such as biliousness, headache, lack of appetite, sleeplessness, bad breath, cankers, fever sores, indigestion, and to break up fevers and colds. Stop that first sneeze or sniffle and you will have a healthy winter.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. Is inexpensive, easily and quickly made. Saves about $5.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for coughs, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but saving no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes.

McGRAW IN THE HOLE FOR ONCE

must hurdle to get the long end of baseball's biggest purse, and the nifty southpaw has plenty of corners to turn before he can even up this thing again.

The Hugging athletes now have segregated the notion that they can hit any kind of Giant pitching, and nobody in the world can blame them. They have discovered that the brains on the hostile bench cannot put any stuff on the ball that comes over the plate, and they have just bumped all their obsessions out of the picture.

GIANTS HAVEN'T QUIT.

One thing we can say, the Giants haven't quit even with the tide of disaster sweeping them into oblivion. They still were trying when Sunday's shadows enveloped another shamrous crowd, though their efforts were tragic, rather than useful.

If Nehf can repeat his fighting of the other day the clan of McGraw can have another shot at it, a chance which can only be a wild stab at best.

For no "Mac" pitcher has shown even slight effectiveness apart from Arthur, who has had plenty of experience in these post season engagements and pitches the kind of baseballs that the Giant sluggers cannot tear apart.

GIANTS WOULD BE FORCED TO RELY ON WATSON

The Giants would be forced to come back with Watson, and John hasn't any more reason to believe he could beat the Yanks, than Scott and McQuillan and Bentley, whose memories hereafter will always be darkened by the happenings of Saturday and yesterday.

Huggins, who had the edge anyway, now has several sections of the middle along with the fringe. He has Sam Jones and Waite Hoyt for use this afternoon and can reserve Pennock for tomorrow, if there's any need of it.

Young Hoyt had an unfortunate experience in the opening scrap, but has the stuff and the courage to come back and do the kind of hurling that made him famous the last two years. Stacked against a shaken Giant confidence, the young man shouldn't have a rugged afternoon.

JONES' PERFORMANCE STANDS AS ONE OF THE BEST.

And the Jones performance, when he lost a game, still stands as one of the best pitching prefers of any series. Sam's wisdom, added to his fadeaway and control, would block almost any attack in a joust that meant anything.

Jones is a tough pitcher to get to when his team is out ahead, and the Yanks are that way now if ever a ball club was. The former Red Sox likes to fool with the enemy when he has any chance, and the Giants are likely to discover that anything but a perfect Nehf game will mean disaster.

Bullet Joe Bush returned to the hall of pitching series fame to celebrate a mild and genial Sunday festival, strangely enough, just ten years back to the day Joseph won his last post-season pastime, beating the Giants of the same Mister McGraw. A decade means nothing in the lives or arms of some of these chuckers.

JOE HAD MORE STUFF THAN IN OLD DAYS

The lantern-jawed veteran had more stuff on the ball he threw for New York's wealthiest colored than he used in the old days. The only Giant who could hit him at all was Irish Meusel, who was having a sort of family battle with his brother Robert.

The National Leaguers made just three base hits off the doughty Bunga, and Irish made two all, a triple, a double and a single. Brother Bob socked out a triple and a pair of doubles, so all the Meusels in the country had a very hilarious weekend. Robert, however, had a wild Yank rush to carry him along, while Emil was working all by his lonesome.

The pair of them made an otherwise dull and drawn out tilt somewhat enjoyable. Joe Dugan, likewise put on a special performance for his father, who sat in the press box. Lank Joseph, a great ball player in this series, made four in a row for his part of the advance, a homer in the second the smack that turned the game over.

IT WASN'T A GREAT HOMER, BUT WAS EFFECTIVE

It wasn't the greatest homer ever pouied off a ball, but it was one of the most effective. There were two men on in the second when the lanky Irish got up to the plate for right cut. He hardly ever hits them in that direction. So Casey Stengel wasn't playing up near to his normal position as he might have been while Ross Young was carelessly close on the foul line, with a dead left field hitter coming up.

The ball landed between Casey and Ross when it seemed to be a pinch that either might have scored. They almost collided, and then gave vain chase to the marble, while three runs rolled off the pillows. Those added to a trio gathered in the first made the afternoon pie a matter of batting practice for the Yanks.

FIRST INNING FORECAST THE EVENTUAL SCORE.

The first inning forecast the eventual score. McGraw, with the memory of Nehf's effectiveness in mind, chased Bentley to the peak. The big Bluffton boy had nothing but a motion. He was saluted with a Dugan single and handed Ruth a walk, trying to fool the "Bam." The first Meusel bomb of the session was a hasty triple to left by Robert that just naturally had to receive a couple of runs.

"Wallie" Pipp, who has ever studied the George Kelly career materially in this mingle, combed a terrific liner to right, but Young made a fine jumping catch, and a sure looking triple was only a sacrifice fly. After that, or shortly after, Bentley was removed to let John Scott get another thumping.

The lank Carolinian entered immediately after the Dugan homer we have mentioned and he wasn't so good. He disappeared in a deluge of base knocks in the fourth. Then young Barnes and Jonnard did some relief pitching which didn't mean a thing, except a chance for McGraw to look over some of the young men who must make up the pitching staff he needs so badly.

Dugan's Father Is Proud of His Son Joe

By Universal Service

New York, Oct. 18.—After Joe Dugan of the Yankees knocked out his fourth straight hit in today's game, a man in the press box shouted:

"He's my boy, my boy, Joe."

When Joe had made his homer and other hits, the man had jumped up, and yelled, the suspicion of a tear in his eyes.

"I stayed away until Sunday," he said, "because I didn't want to jinx Joe and the Yanks. But they did so well Saturday that I thought I'd take a chance on them."

Joe's wife and his two brothers, students at Holy Cross, his alma mater, saw the game from a box.

PLAYERS SPLIT MORE THAN $272,000

The Giants and Yankees will divide the largest bonus that ever accrued to World series' contenders as the result of the record attendance and receipts of the first four games of the present baseball classic. Twenty-six players on each team are eligible to share in the "pool," which amounts to $272,057.28.

The members of the winning team will receive 60 per cent. of this total and the losers 40 per cent. If the shares are divided equally each winning player, be he Giant or Yank, will pocket $6,378.94 and each loser $4,155.36.

WILL NOT BE SURPRISED IF GIANTS WIN TODAY

By JOHN J. EVERS

New York, Oct. 15.—The Yanks are in the driver's seat. However, don't let it be understood that the series is over.

The Yanks are playing a very dangerous club under such conditions, and one that has never failed when the crisis arose.

It would not surprise me in the least to see the Giants, light as they only can, win today.

The game was featured by the hitting of the Yankees and the pitching of "Old" Joe Bush. I must refer to Joe as one of the veterans. It is indeed a pleasure to all us vets to look on and see Bush and "Casey" Stengel star at the late date.

Neither is old in years, but in this series they probably are the veterans of both teams.

Joe's game was perfection itself, and could not be improved.

Bentley, who started for the Giants, had plenty of stuff but just couldn't get started.

The Yanks attack came so suddenly that the game was really over after Bob Meusel's three-base hit, in view of the way Bush pitched.

There was no really hard hit ball off Bush except "Irish" Meusel's triple.

The Giants did not exhibit their usual dash in the field after that blow and, unless they perk up and come to themselves, they will lose the title of gamesters that I personally know they are.

An odd feature of all the Yanks' hitting was that both Meusel and Dugan, who did the bulk of the hitting, have been the weak hitters in the series.

FIELDING OF THE YANKEES WAS SUPERB.

The fielding of the Yanks was superb, and Bush aided wonderfully by plays at first base that were of the star order.

Young's one handed catch on Pipp in the first was a dandy. A strange occurrence, when least expected, was George Kelly's error on Ruth's liner back of first. He had been through a stretch of something like twelve World's series games without a bobble.

Personally, I should have given Ruth a hit on such a hard-smashed ball, which Kelly was lucky to knock down.

The series looks as though it will go to the full seven games. It appears as though McGraw will pitch Art Nehf today and Huggins will pitch Waite Hoyt.

In that case I look for the Giants to be returned the winner and bring the series to the seventh game.

If it goes to seven games, the winner will be an absolute toss-up. However, if the Yankees, who seem to have struck a hitting spree, continue to hammer out hits, no team can stop them, and tonight will find the big town deserted by out-of-town fans.

These fans will leave today or tomorrow satisfied that they have seen the greatest series ever played, financially, physically and otherwise.

SCOREBOARD IS GREATEST OF ALL SHOWS

By JIMMIE O'BRIEN

America's Score Board Operator

"The Greatest of All Shows."

If Barnum, the great showman, were alive, he would have surrendered the palm to the American's Baseball Scoreboard on Winthrop square, Sunday afternoon.

Great crowds had gathered for the first four games, but ideal weather and the fact that the teams were even up on the series, brought the biggest throng that was ever seen before a scoreboard in Boston.

In the crowd I saw a friend from Lexington and another from Brockton, so I presume that all of Greater Boston was represented, and there were many feminine fans among them who joined merrily in the cheering when the opportunity presented itself.

Many of my auditors came by auto and parked their cars on the sidelines. The kiddies were there and were much in evidence in the cheering.

"Play Ball"—Jack Stafford, umpire and well known announcer, presided at the megaphone, and in stentorian tones he carried the plays to the outer edge of the throng.

"Batsroff up," and the game was on. The Giants went out in order in the first inning and the fans were on tiptoe, figuring that the Yanks might have their batting clothes on, and they were not disappointed.

"Wit up"—Out on a foul to Gowdy—"Dugar up." He singled. "Ruth up," and the crowd cheered lustily for "The Bambino."

He walked.

"R. Meusel up"—He tripled, Dugan and Ruth scored, and the fans went wild—"Pipp sacrificed, Meusel scored." "Ward singled, stole second"—"Schang fanned."

The fans were in a happy frame of mind when they saw the figure three posted on the big scoreboard.

In the next inning the Giants made one run on the triple of Young, who scored on Stengel's out at first.

But the next inning clinched the game for the Yanks, when Dugan made his homer with Bush and Witt on the bases.

Those crazy Bostonians in the Grainary burying ground must have turned over in their tombs when the crowd cheered, and wondered what all the hubbub was about.

"Ruth safe on Kelly's fumble" and he scored on Meusel's single and Pipps' drive—four runs and a total of 7.

The crowd stayed through the entire game. They scored to enjoy my comedy announcements, between the innings, and all agreed that the "O'Brien System" was a perfect replica of the contest at the Yankee Stadium, and that they all would be on hand for today's game, and try to secure a precious spot in Winthrop square.

ALL OVER BUT THE CHEERING FOR YANKS

By EVERETT SCOTT.

Captain of the New York Yankees.

New York, Oct. 18.—Everything looks wonderfully rosy for us now. Just one more victory is needed to give to us a world's championship.

Everett Scott.

We have Sam Jones fit as a fiddle to toss at the Giants, the team is hitting and playing superlative baseball at last—and it seems as if the series will come to an end before nightfall.

We have nothing to fear now from the Giants' pitchers.

We have hammered every one they've sent against us—except Nehf—and we figure that if John McGraw sends him to the mound in the next game with the Yankees still running amuck with their bats we will give to Nehf the same punishment we have handed out so far to Watson, Scott, Bentley, Ryan and the others.

Before this series began I said that if the "breaks" were all even and if the battles were decided simply on the batting, fielding and pitching merits of the two clubs, we would get our revenge this year for the beatings we suffered in 1921 and 1922, when luck gave victory to the enemy.

The proverbial Giant luck hasn't been making itself very apparent of late and in the last two games we have played our real style. As a result we have simply swamped the Giants under a shower of hits.

Everybody is hitting these days—and the boys will keep right on hitting this afternoon and by mid-such time as they have pounded out enough to win for us the fourth and deciding game of the series.

McGraw is a great thinker, we hear—very deep and serious thinker. Thoughts are wonderful things, but they don't compare with base hits. We'll bet McGraw do the thinking—and we'll do the hitting.

By nightfall there'll be no further need for McGraw to do any further baseball thinking until next year unless, of course, he likes to think remorseful baseball thoughts and of the things than might have been.

Luke Urban's Charges Next in Line for B.C.

The Eagle passed the second milestone of its championship flight by adding Fordham to its list of victims. All eyes are now turned eagerly in the direction of Buffalo and Cavisius wondering what tactics Luke Urban will this year use against his Alma Mater.

Luke Urban

The battle that the Urbanites put up last year will bring a great crowd to Braves Field to see what surprises the All American end is so spring this year against his old coach, Frank Cavanaugh.

The Eagle surely misses Ojo Kozlowsky, one of the brainiest and fastest tackles ever turned out by Cavanaugh. The Fordham game showed how much he was needed, when the two opposing ends gained at will through the substitute Eagle tackles.

This week should serve to polish up the newcomers to the tackle positions, however, and even with the stellar performer out, the line should behave perfectly.

Canisius has been greatly handicapped by graduation losses. "Red" Weldon, fullback, is the only man to return to the backfield. Donahue, the miniature quarterback, who impressed the crowds with his generalship last year, as well as Mickey Lynch who played half, have left Canisius.

Eddie Hanquoso, from St. Bona venture, is a likely successor to Donahue, with O'Hare, a newcomer from Buffalo Prep good for one halfback position. Jack Redmond, a Maine prep school star, is in line as the other half.

Harry Collins, guard, and Frank Lynch, a tackle, are back, and Shea, a newcomer, looks well as a guard. These linemen are under the tutelage of Frank Morrissey, another Boston College graduate.

Canisius is feeling cocky after its first two games, and looks for as successful a season as they enjoyed last year. Urban is making good as a coach, and hopes to give the Eagle as big a score as he did once before.

WHITE SOX DEFEAT THEIR CITY RIVALS

Chicago, Oct. 18.—More than 45,000 fans, the greatest crowd that ever attended a baseball game in Chicago, saw the White Sox beat the Cubs, 5 to 3, in the fourth game of the series. The victory evened the series at two wins each. A home run by Earl Sheely, with Hooper on first base, broke up the game in the ninth.

The total paid attendance was 41,825. This is the largest crowd which ever saw a game in Chicago. The nearest to title figure was 36,333.

Other figures on today's game were: Receipts, $36,763.31; players' pool, $18,751.84; each club's share, $6,250.61; commission's share, $5,514.26.

It was the last game in which the players shared receipts, and the total amount in the players' pool is $53,877.18. This will be split 60 per cent. to the club winning the series and 40 per cent. to the losers.

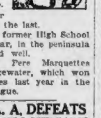
MARQUETTES IN VICTORY OVER MILLSTREAMS

The Pere Marquettes chalked up their fourth consecutive victory yesterday when they took the Dorchester Millstreams into camp at the Christopher J. Lee Playgrounds. The score was 21 to 0.



It was a game replete with thrills, dashing runs, and stellar tackling but best of all the powerful Dorchester outfit fought to the last.

Tomaso Ring, former High School of Commerce star, in the peninsula backfield, played well.

Next Sunday Pere Marquettes will play Bridgewater, which won all of its games last year in the Old Colony League.

COWBOY TO MAKE DEBUT

Buck Stone, the millionaire cowboy wrestler, who made such a hit at the Grand Opera House last Thursday night that the fans have requested Matchmaker Paul Dever to sign him up again for the main bout at his coming Thursday night's show. He is 100 per cent. American, wrestles fair and clean and for the love of the game and with a little more experience has a chance to meet all the head line heavyweights. At present he is especially anxious to meet Stanislaus Stasiak, the Polish Lion.

His match Thursday night will be a best two falls in three to a finish affair with Zulu Hevumpa, the Fiery Finn, as his opponent.

Hevumpa while not a real top notcher in the game is a real tough customer and has a way of handing out rough stuff that will make a younger man with a faint heart run out through the ropes.

Should the 23 year old Stone come through this bout with flying colors it will be up to Stanislaus Koslanenus or some of the other grapplers to pay attention to his challenges.

Another bout on the card will be between Charlie Marshall, the French light heavy weight champion and Jimmy Gutwell, the Lithuanian light heavyweight. This bout will also be one full to a positive finish.

Marshall gave a good account of himself last Thursday night. He was in wonderful condition and furnished action from start to finish.

$10,000 for Greb to Meet Suffolk Bout Winner

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. is ready to offer Harry Greb a guarantee of $10,000 to meet the winner of the Johnny Wilson-George Robinson bout which will be staged under the auspices of the Suffolk A. A. Friday night at the Arena.

"However," adds Goodwin, "I don't want Greb at 175 pounds. If he will sign to meet Wilson or Robinson and agree to weigh at 160 pounds at 2 o'clock the day of the match, I'll put up the guarantee.

"There isn't a question in my mind but that a championship match between Greb and the winner of the Wilson-Robinson clash would draw at least $40,000 in Boston, and I am ready to take the gamble.

ETELMAN READY TO PLAY FOR JUMBOS

Carl Etelman, quarterback, and Allie Cohen, halfback, two members of the Tufts varsity scoring quartet, who have been on the sidelines for two weeks will probably return to their old positions and will face Wesleyan on Saturday.

Reidman has been suffering from a bad ankle injury and Cohen sustained a fractured cheek bone in the game with the Connecticut Aggies. The return of these two will strengthen the back field.

Assistant Coach Walter Cleary will drill his linemen this afternoon at Tufts Oval. Coach Casey will not hold a scrimmage session until Wednesday. Casey will prune his athletes for the overland attack and expects to get good results against Wesleyan.

McGRAW ADMITS IT'S TOO MUCH JOE DUGAN

By WAITE HOYT
Of the Yankees.

Copyright by Universal Service.

New York, Oct. 15.—The Yanks advanced one step nearer their goal. They easily defeated the Giants, 5 to 1. The entire Yankee club stepped out and "did their stuff" and piled up fourteen hits and eight runs. Not satisfied with that accomplishment, Bullet Joe Bush permitted only three hits, and all of them to Irish Meusel.

Joe Dugan

Joe Dugan played in his usual sensational style. He fielded flawlessly and increased his batting average with four hits out of a possible five chances. He is easily our star of the series.

McGraw remarked to an inquisitive spectator who asked what he thought of the game, "Too much Dugan."

The leader of the Giants rushed a quartet of pitchers into the battle. It was too late. The dam was broken and the damage done.

YANKS SAY THEY WILL NOT BE STOPPED.

We could not be stopped. We shall not be stopped, regardless of whom they may pitch today. If of course will be Nehf. There is no other choice.

Huggins says that either Pennock or I should fling in order to clinch the championship.

My own opinion is that he will choose Pennock, not because of his lack of confidence in me, but for the reason that the Giants have seen little of Herb, and lots of me in the past three years.

Either selection will be good, and will give us a reserve of Jones and Pennock, or Jones and Hoyt.

EXCUSABLE ERROR BY STENGEL WAS LUCKY BREAK.

An excusable mudday by Stengel aided us to compile four runs in the second. With two men on base Dugan hit a fence to straight. Casey misjudged the ball momentarily, but no doubt to the shadows of the stand. The ball got away from him and went for a home run. It was a lucky break for us.

The series has been a huge success, credited to be fighting blood of the Yankees who could not see themselves licked a third time by the same club.

The hustle and fight they employed the last two days has been a surprise to our staunchest defenders, who had as pictured as a docile organization.

The spirit in the clubhouse is unbounded, and confidence exudes from every pore.

Art Nehf does not know what he must face today.

BUSH CELEBRATED HIS 9TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

It was a particularly sweet victory for Joe Bush to gain. He had been beaten three straight times by the National Leaguers and was due for a break. That is not all. It was Joe's ninth wedding anniversary and it was fittingly celebrated.

As Ward threw to Pipp for the last out, Bullet Joe waved his hand to his wife, who sat in a field box behind third base. They will remember Sunday the 14th, as long as they live.

Today we hope to win the world's championship and vindicate ourselves in the eyes of the New York fans.

The club consists of most of the boys who suffered two humiliating defeats in 1921 and 1922.

To win this year would take out all the sting.

We refuse to be jubilant quite this early, but I hope tonight will be the happiest one of our careers.

FRIEDMAN AND GARDNER IN ARMORY BOUT

By JACK CONWAY

Boston will be very much on the fistic map this week, with two high-class shows scheduled.

The Armory A. A. will open festivities when it holds a bang-up all-star card at Mechanics Building on tomorrow night.

Pal Reed

The Suffolk A. A. will step into the picture on Friday evening, with Johnny Wilson, former world's middleweight champion, billed to meet George Robinson of Cambridge in a ten-session affair at the Arena.

For the Armory show, Matchmaker George Freeman has booked three ten-round bouts and an eight-round affair.

Spencer Gardner, classy New York bantamweight, and Abe Friedman, New England bantamweight, will swap punches in the feature ten-round tussle.

It will be the second meeting between these men. When they swapped blows in this city last Spring, Gardner won a questionable decision. The verdict created quite an uproar among the fans. As Gardner is in line to secure a match with Joe Lynch, he will make a mighty effort to whang out a win tomorrow night.

Eddie Mack states that Friedman is in the best of condition and that he will carry Gardner along at a merry clip.

* * *

Joe Eagan, veteran Dorchester middleweight, will try to dispose of Pal Reed of Natick. Joe proved he is going high once more when he recently won over Johnny McLaughlin of Philadelphia. Reed won his last start by defeating Pat McCarthy and he is of the opinion he can also dispose of Eagan.

When these men clashed at Revere last summer, the decision went to Reed after a torrid session.

There is also considerable interest in the ten-round sette in which Wilson Goswell of Somerville will have Charley Parker of the South End as an opponent. Gradfell gave the dopesters a jolt a few weeks ago at Lowell when he won over Young Tansey.

Parker has been training for a month and says he will start his drive for the New England light weight title by winning over Goswell.

Steve Adams of Chicago and Young Pangraze of Quincy will clash in the opening bout of eight rounds.

Steve Adams of Chicago and Young Pangraze of Quincy will clash in the opening bout of eight rounds.

WILSON AND ROBINSON IN RING CLASSIC

There's intense interest in the ten-round sette to which Wilson Goswell of Somerville will have Charley Parker of the South End as an opponent. Gradfell gave the dopesters a jolt a few weeks ago at Lowell when he won over Young Tansey.

Parker has been training for a month and says he will start his drive for the New England light weight title by winning over Graham

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Most of us at times need a little bucking-up. We have a tendency to get into a rut, to take things easy, to become satisfied to jog along lazily to content ourselves with doing less than our utmost.

As with individuals, so with cities. Some cities are wide awake, enterprising, forward-pressing, bubbling with energy, full of fruitfulness. And they progress accordingly. Other cities, equally rich in opportunity and resources, lag behind the procession.

Take this city of Seattle, where this column is being written. It is phenomenally endowed by nature. It has surpassing agricultural, industrial, marine, commercial and home-building advantages. It has an invigorating climate and it has many citizens of the substantial, alert, progressive type.

Like most places, it had its relapses after the boom days had spent itself. But, unlike many other places, particularly on the forward looking, vitalized Pacific Coast, it was not content with vigorous strides its potentialities warranted. It was making some headway, too. But, nevertheless, there was a lack of civic teamwork. There was a lack of cohesive leadership. There was a lack of the go-getter spirit which we customarily associate with prosperous, growing, well-favored Western cities.

Then something happened.

The owner of the Post-Intelligencer, W. H. Hearst, had a thorough investigation made of the whole situation. The results convinced him that the people of Seattle were not doing full justice to themselves. He sent to Seattle some of the ablest men in his army of 40,000 employes. The co-operation of the more enterprising of the city's citizens was enlisted in launching a "forward march, Seattle" movement.

Doctors tell us that a patient's state of mind has much to do with the rate of his or her recovery. And those of us who study economics know that even the soundest of conditions will not bring on recovery if every body is thinking pessimism, talking pessimism, acting pessimism.

* * *

Well, Seattle and the State of Washington began to think and talk and act with revived confidence. They, too, took inventory of their resources, their prospects, their opportunities.

With what result?

The city of Seattle and the State of Washington have taken on a new measure of activity. They are moving forward with firmer, surer step. Industry has been quickened. Business is brisker. Enterprise has been reinvigorated. Employment has broadened.

* * *

Civic spirit has developed. Teamwork is blossoming. Leadership is crystallizing. Faith has been restored.

* * *

"Forward march, Seattle," has become a reality.

* * *

For example, the first gathering I attended on arriving here was a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. The largest dining hall in the city was filled to overflowing by representative business men, with a hundred or two compelled to eat elsewhere—later they jammed into the hall. Secretary Thomas declared that was the largest meeting in the history of the Chamber—one sign, just, of the awakened civic spirit.

* * *

Chairman Gaines extended the thanks of the Chamber and of the community to the Post-Intelligencer and the Hearst organization for the part they had played in helping the city to find itself afresh.

* * *

The writer was induced to get on his hind legs to offer some of that plentiful commodity—suggestions. Some of the things he is learning about this part of the country will interest other sections. Of this, more later.

* * *

Meanwhile, it may not be out of place to ask whether there are not other cities and communities that can take a pointer from what Seattle has done?

* * *

Beware of smug complacence.

SUCCESS DATES BACK ABOUT 40 YEARS

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Souvenir booklet giving the beginnings of the Wall Street Journal has just been issued. Some of the high lights of New England interest are:

First financial news service started by Charles H. Dow and Edward D. Jones, about 40 years ago. Messrs Dow and Jones going to Wall street from reporting jobs in Providence.

Their news service grew into Wall street's first big financial newspaper and finally started electric page printers.

Sold out in 1902 to Clarence W. Barron, who was graduated from old Boston English High School in 1873, 18 years after same institution graduated J. P. Morgan.

Boston News Bureau started by Mr. Barron in July, 1887.

COSTS IN BERLIN

Recently the following dispatch was given space with a Berlin date line in American newspapers:

"The present figure of the cost of living in Berlin has doubled within the last four days, and was set today at 155,000,000 marks."

"The prices of the leading commodities in million of marks, are given as follows:

"Bread, 76 per loaf; milk, 25 per quart; butter, 400 per pound; potatoes, 5 per pound; coal briquettes, 200 per hundred-weight. These prices, according to present indications, will possibly be doubled within a day or two."

"A telegram to England at the present rate costs 49,000,000 marks a word."

Of course it was not the cost of living that doubled in four days—it only appeared to do so. What actually happened was that the value of the German mark depreciated.

WARNING GIVEN

The alleged attempt to swindle by telephone recently aired in Framingham Court had no connection with the Boston Stock Exchange than that it involved an attempt to obtain shares of motor stock. Yet the warning issued by Manager H. B. Kenner of the Better Business Bureau would, if heeded, protect the unsuspicious investor in all lines.

Says Mr. Kenner—"Credulous men and women sometimes permit themselves to be induced to put their money by trading in stocks or bonds over the telephone with so-called brokers, whom they do not know and never heard of.

"The same men and women would never dream of buying a house and lot or a diamond ring or selling an automobile except through a dealer whose reputation is known and respected.

INVESTIGATE FIRST

"But all a dishonest stock vendor needs to do is to work at the telephone a few hours. He doesn't sell everyone he calls. Oh, no! Many people are too wise for him; but like a good disciple of Isaac Walton, he keeps on fishing until he hooks his victim. And he gets the unwary man's money without being seen, yes, without even signing his name to any document or letter which could be used to prove a case in court against him.

"Never send money or trust valuable documents to anyone until their reputation for honesty is established beyond question."

This form of detaching money from those who fail to heed our advice to investigate before buying—and our advisory service is free—is known as "Milking by Telephone."

PUNTA DIVIDEND ACTION TODAY

Punta Alegre Sugar directors meet today for dividend action, when resumption is expected by many holders of the stock.

It has been expected that Punta's dividends would be resumed at rate of 10 per cent, or $5 a year.

However, interests in the company have always felt that stockholders of a sugar company are entitled to a return of 10 per cent. on their investments, and in prosperous times to such extra dividends as earnings may justify. A basis, therefore, does not necessarily represent the maximum Punta Alegre dividends possible.

Company has about 250,000 bags of sugar unsold, or 20 per cent. of the past season's crop. The recovery in raw sugar from four cents to 5½ cents for Cuban raw has been a substantial item, inasmuch as a cent a pound more or less on this stock of raws means $800,000.

After all dead season expenses, such as advances to colonos, repairs, etc., taking in all necessary expenditures down to the beginning of grinding operations in December, Punta Alegre should have between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 of cash.

RADIO CORPORATION

To E. P., Roslindale:—One of the most difficult things we have to do is to advise people who are attracted by Radio Corporation of America's remarkable earnings statement. The difficulty is very greatly increased when we do not know anything about the financial qualifications and investment requirements of the individual who is back of the letter that we are trying to answer. And that is the case with your letter. We do not know anything about your investment requirements and, of course, do not know anything about the extent of your investment capital.

It is very apparent, however, that Radio Corporation of America is making money and it has succeeded in expanding enormously. And the best of it is it has paid for its development and equipment wholly out of earnings and has never borrowed any money from the public. The stockholders own the company. But when they can cash in their profits through the receipt of dividends is a matter of pure conjecture.

Even though we don't know anything about your investment requirements we might, however, express the opinion that Radio Corporation of America's preferred stock offered attractive speculative possibilities for a long pull because the stock is becomes cumulative in 1924. The common stock is essentially a highly speculative issue.

ROYAL DUTCH.

To C. B. S., Holiday street—Royal Dutch Company with its affiliated interests in the Shell group is one of the largest oil companies in the world outside of the Standard Oil group. The company has extensive properties in Dutch East Indies, Rumania, Russia, Egypt, Ceram, Sarawak, Panama, Venezuela, Mexico and the United States. The Royal Dutch-Shell combine is interested in all branches of the petroleum industry, including production, refining, transportation and marketing.

The Shell Union Oil Company is the holding corporation for most of the Royal Dutch-Shell interests in this country.

The corporation was formed in 1890 at The Hague, Holland. In 1903 an affiliation was made with the Shell Transport and Trading Company of London and the de Rothschild interests of Paris. Capitalization consists of 3,800,000 florins ($11,457,600 at par of exchange) in 4½ per cent. cumulative priority shares, 1,500,000 florins ($2,850,000 in preference shares, and 221,457,600 florins ($130,199,905) in ordinary shares. The preferred shares can be transferred only to persons citizens of or resident in the Netherlands. The "New York shares" traded in on the New York Stock Exchange were issued by the Equitable Trust Company in the ratio of three shares against each sub-share of 100 florins deposited under a trust agreement. The book value of each New York share, at par of exchange, is approximately $225, according to the company's latest balance sheet.

The company's financial statement for 1922 shows that only the amount of its investments in stocks and bonds of subsidiaries, and give no account of the actual worth of the properties of the operating concerns, which are understood to be considerably in excess of the amount at which their securities are carried on the books of the parent company.

Total income available for dividends, consisting almost entirely of payments received from subsidiaries, amounted to 87,736,477 florins (approximately $35,192,190) in 1922, compared with 104,098,178 florins normally available in 1921, and 129,450,364 florins ($71,780,453) in 1920. It is the company's policy to take from its subsidiaries only slightly more than enough to pay dividends on its own stocks.

Although current earnings naturally have been somewhat adversely affected by the recent slump in oil prices, the company has managed to hold its own in good shape, according to those in close touch with the management. Current inventories are said to be relatively low.

Increase in Price of Coal

The Mayor and Fuel Administrator Hultman Should Protect the People From Extortion

We are very glad to observe that Mayor Curley and Fuel Administrator Hultman are hard at work organizing a resistance to the arbitrary and unjustifiable increase in the price of coal to our New England consumers.

The Mayor says that "in view of the fact that the total increase in the cost of coal resulting from the present settlement of the labor difficulties represents an advance of about seventy cents a ton, and that weather conditions are such as to permit the receipt and delivery without additional cost, it would appear that the latest increase is an unwarranted and unjust, extortionate gouge that should not be permitted."

Fuel Administrator Hultman denies that the coal dealers have any excuse for their failure to obtain the normal supply of coal. "Cars are now coming in faster," he declared, "than during the same period of 1921 and 1922, and within a few days receipts are expected to offset the losses which occurred during the period when the mines were closed pending the settlement of the labor disputes by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania."

Indeed, Commissioner Hultman performed an important service to the people of New England, when, through this newspaper early last Summer, he warned the people not to become frightened, and not to put in coal at unusually high prices, for if the strike was settled in the early Fall there would be plenty of time to bring in normal quantities of coal, and coal scarcity could not be made an excuse for increasing the price of coal.

We hope that these two gentlemen will employ whatever public authority with which they may be clothed to protect the people against this particular extortion.

Illiteracy in Mexico

People After 400 Years of Misrule Are Now Helping Themselves to Education

Dr. O. W. C. Cook, who has just returned from Mexico, told the meeting of the N. E. branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church the other night that twelve out of the fifteen million people in Mexico could not read or write; and that for ten long years they have been struggling by a series of revolutions to throw off the deadly burden of feudalism which they have been carrying for 400 years, and which has stooped and almost blinded them.

The United States did little to help her Southern neighbor in all these years, but now the people of Mexico are helping themselves, and the increase of literacy will begin to be noticed soon.

Russia was far worse off than Mexico, but today the Russian government is not only educating all its little children, but it is actually educating six million adults!

In the Philippines we found that only 8 per cent. of the people could read and write when we took possession after 400 years of Spanish rule. After 20 years of American assistance, some 52 per cent. of the Filipinos can now read and write. And they are learning self-government at a most embarrassing rate.

When the British came to India and an overdeveloped passiveism turned that tremendous population over to a band of British adventurers, 66 per cent. of the people of India could read and write—a far greater proportion of literacy than their conquerors could show. Today, after 200 years of British misrule, only 8 per cent. of the people of India can read and write.

People who govern themselves or who are governed altruistically always advance in education. People who are governed for the benefit entirely of the conqueror always retrograde in education. The advance or retreat of public education is the test. It proved that British rule in India is selfish. It proves that American co-operation in the Philippines is unselfish.

Prohibition Enforcement

Federal Government's Picayune Policy Must Stand Some of Blame of Unnecessary Failures

The vigorous way in which the Attorney General is prosecuting the violators of our liquor law presents a pleasing contrast to the conduct of the United States District Attorney's office in Massachusetts.

He has joined hands with Rev. Arthur E. Tarbell, assistant superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. They promise to make some disclosures concerning certain District Court judges within a few days. These disclosures involve the enforcement of the liquor law. In this connection we want to quote what Nathan W. Littlefield, president of the Rhode Island Anti-Saloon League, says:

The enforcement of prohibition in this State is not all that it should be. I believe the director, Harry G. Sheldon, is honestly doing the best he can under the picayune policy of the Federal government.

Both in Massachusetts and in Rhode Island the Federal government's picayune policy must stand for some of the blame for whatever unnecessary failures there are in the enforcement. The National Government could enforce the law if it enthusiastically tried. It would apparently, however, prefer to ascribe failures to local causes. It is not all the fault even of local U. S. attorneys.

Gloom Among Republicans

It is interesting to observe that there was no very optimistic note sounded at the meeting of the Massachusetts Republican Club the other night. The speakers all warned the members and party workers that the results of the election in Massachusetts next year were by no means certain.

When an old and regular Republican organization like the Massachusetts Republican Club is obliged to hear that kind of talk from Republican leaders in a State which has gone Democratic only once since the Civil War in a national election, and then only when the Republicans were divided, there must have been gloom present which you could have cut with a knife.

PALACE IS SOLD FOR $54

BUDAPEST, Oct. 15.—Fifty-four dollars was the price the Frankfort General Insurance Company paid for the palace of Count Batthany in this city. The palace is a copy of the famous Plazzo Strozzi.

After the termination of the Bolshevik administration the count did not care to use the palace again and sold it for 20,000 marks to the insurance company. The price of 100 marks at that time was $1.50. The buying company borrowed the money and paid only the interest. Now that the mark is almost worthless, the company paid its debt, which on that day amounted to the equivalent of $54.

Not Such a Bargain

Editor Boston American:

I am the sickest person in the world. Recently I saw a coat in a window bearing a $30 mark. I went in and after an hour's bargaining bought it for $20. Oh, but I was proud, but on my way home I saw another coat, an exact duplicate, marked $12.50. Is the fault mine or with the many two-priced stores? J. C.

Wants Conditions Bettered

Editor Boston American:

How long can Boston afford to be the "Sairey Gamp" of American cities? I refer to the conditions at the municipal "Hotel de Marm"-selle 'Awkins?"

If "the wealth of the city lies in the health of her citizens," the sanitary conditions there should be radically changed.

And to think that Boston has more "welfare" and "social" workers than there are politicians in Washington.

EVERETT ROGERS.

On the Other Hand

Editor Boston American:

Relative to the young woman who smoked in the smoking car of a train, why wouldn't men be surprised and make remarks? What would women say of a man who used a lipstick, rouge and powder and entered a subway train engaged in the gentle art of crocheting? Conventions might be one thing, but common sense is another.

Woman Needs Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

My husband died nine years ago, leaving me with two children, a boy and a girl, both married. This leaves me dependent on the son who has a wife and child to care for. I am unable to do any sewing or other work as I have trouble with my eyes. I would greatly appreciate anything in Winter underwear or a dress, size 46, and also stockings and shoes, size 5½ and 6.

Offers Furniture

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a buffet, a long settee, and an old-fashioned rocking chair. There maybe also someone in need of some preserve jars (about fifty). If there is anyone who would have any use for a one-month-old kitten, I have one to get rid of in a week, or it will have to go to the Animal Rescue League. By the time people come after those things, I shall have gathered some more.

MAJOR SMILE.

Many thanks. Your offers will be held for replies.

Mother of 8 in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I am making an appeal for children's clothing of any kind. I have eight little children, five girls, singes, seven and a half, three and a half and four months old, and three boys, eight and a half, six and two and a half. My husband is stricken with rheumatism and only works one or two days a week, so I can hardly pay for the rent and food. I would not ask if I was not so much in need. I have just two old housedresses for myself, so anything else 40 or 42 would be greatly appreciated.

This is the time of year when we get lots of calls for coats. Thank you. You have been sent the address of J. H. MacM., who will be grateful for it.

Girl Needs Coat

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a girl of fourteen and would like to have a Winter coat. My father is dead and my mother has six children, the oldest being sixteen years, and she is the only one working. My mother cannot afford to buy a Winter coat. Last Winter I went to school with a sweater and was frozen. I would be so pleased if I had a Winter coat on me.

Help for Sisters

Would be very glad if Carmella would bring her two sisters to me. We can fit them with coats and help them in other ways. We would like to ask through yours paper for a second-hand baby carriage for a very delicate mother who has no way of getting one. SISTER MARY.

Thank you indeed. Carmella has been asked to bring them. We will let you know of the nice baby carriage offered.

Coats for T. B. Patient

Editor Helping Hand:

I have two overcoats about size 38 which I would like to give to two persons who have tuberculosis. The coats belong to a tubercular patient, so of course could not be given to a well person. MRS. E. W. D.

Guess they could be steamed or something for another person to wear; but we will hold your kind offer for replies. Thank you.

CLOSING THE HOLES IN SWISS CHEESE AND ELSEWHERE

By Herbert Kaufman

SWISS creamery experts have learned what makes such large holes in their cheeses and plan to reduce them by better chosen pasturage; just as we're beginning to discover that the holes in State and National budgets can only be prevented by improving public servants.

New York's probe of barge canal expenditures grows more malodorous as it proceeds. The latest bit of jobbery exposed is the purchase of used dredges at the market price of new ones, each of which required over eleven thousand dollars' worth of retinkering before placed in commission.

The man who gets your vote for any office procures more or less permission to spend everybody's income and send the bill through tax gatherers.

Pork barrels signify reckless choice of legislators and the judges who pass upon their enactments and conduct.

A Western banker presents each of his children annually with a greenback on which is marked $1.06, $1.10 and $1.12—to show the relative values of a dollar, respectively, in the hands of thoughtless, cautious and shrewd investors.

General conditions are likewise indicative of the thoughtlessness, caution and shrewdness of voters.

Wherever there's bad government, majority indifference has invited it. Investigate candidates, their records and affiliations; don't give proxy control over your independence, your rights and goods, to the wrong party.

Scandals in the Spotlight

Scandal has a star role in other theatres, too.

The spectacular Whitney-Fontaine affair advances again to the spotlight.

Appellate Court justices overrule a prior decision setting aside the annulment of Miss Fontaine's marriage, thus reopening her breach of promise suit.

Multi-Millionaire Stokes, indicted by Chicago authorities for conspiring to wreck his wife's reputation, furnishes a picture to satisfy poorer folk with their modest, decent lots.

Gold isn't yet a panacea. Croesus' wealths won't cure a heartache or gild disgrace. The penetrating rays of the news pierce mansion and tenement walls to find omnipresent tawdriness and misery.

Albert Leven, fourth corner of an alleged love quadrangle, consisting of wife, self, an intellectual and a physical mate, is sued for divorce. Now that Turkey has followed the compulsory action of Utah and polygamy is prohibited there, gentlemen with Mr. Leven's reputed ideals are hard put to find complacent environments.

A fast changing world.

Trailing the Guilty Link

The Department of Justice, informed that retail dealers are demanding $16 and $17 a ton for anthracite, plan an inquiry.

Somebody's profiteering. Washington seeks to locate the guilty link in distribution.

Meanwhile, commercial bodies, frightened at the prospect of spreading Federal supervision, rally to the support of the coal crowd. The country wants a square deal, not propaganda. Partisans of the operators aren't friends of the consumer. Big business can easier save the ship by pitching that bunch of Jonahs overboard.

Necessity, with an eye on future fuel shortage, makes several grabs at overhead coattails.

The General Electric Company devises a boiler which replaces steam with volatiled mercury. Everything that's practicable isn't practical. There's hardly enough quicksilver to go round. Competing purposes would therefore soon send present quotations to prohibitive levels.

Hopes that glitter in the laboratory often lose their brilliance under the test of quantity production.

Reaping the Whirlwind

Enormous electrical savings are effected through a new motor, invented by Fynn and Weichsel, which utilizes the power left idle by direct and alternating currents. From 15 to 30 per cent. increased energy is obtained without adding to fuel costs. Lighting companies, traffic systems and factories will consequently be able to reduce their charges and goods. There's billions in it—but how many of 'em will be rebated to the consumer?

German billions, however, are all in print. The vicious course of depreciation, which reaches a ten-billion-marks-dollar level, compels topsy-turvedom to adopt a gold tax basis. Its own paper is thus repudiated by the Reich.

Rothschild once borrowed a million pounds of specie from the Bank of England during a financial crisis, pledging himself to return the loan in kind.

When he tendered notes in satisfaction, the governors dared not refuse to accept them, fearing to precipitate a panic by placing gold above Britain's credit. Threadneedle Street isn't to be caught in traps of that sort.

Berlin sowed a whirlwind and must reap it.

Looking Ahead

Where's the nearest fire alarm? C. L. Tinker, an authority, says that nine men in ten don't know where to find a call box when it's needed. Look up the one nearest your house and mark it down. Best not to count on the telephone when home and maybe lives are at stake.

Remember that 4,000 children were burnt alive last year.

Be more careful with the match box and where you toss lighted cigarettes.

Above all, teach youngsters to stay out of the garage. Fools will risk disaster by smoking in such inflammable surroundings.

Look ahead and be safer, also prosperous.

In the phraseology of the conference school, Mr. Wildi did.

One hundred and seventy-six shares of Helvetia Milk stock, for which he gave around $5,000, have just been sold by his widow for $3,600,000.
